CORRIGAN

First Chapter of Fascinating New Serial Story By Edmund Snell

1—CORRIGAN'S WAY

The little coasting steamer Hau-fah, Dutch owned, made leisurely for the patch of green which showed in the horizon like jade in a sea of lapis-lazuli. The first mate, a truculent brigand in dirty whites and canvas shoes broken at the sides, was getting a motley collection of dark-skinned natives below hatches; protesting Malays with strange bundles; Japanese girls, broad-featured and giggling; Chinese coolies, some with flimsy boxes resembling violin-cases, others with nothing at all, because they had gambled away everything they had started with except a strip of rag at the loins; a tall Sikh with curling beard and effeminate swagger; Tamils, coal black and wearing gold ornaments in their lips, noses and ears, ... tering like a monkey colony, clutching their entire worldl possessions. they swarmed below decks to remain, wedged like sweltering sardiens, until the vessel chose to put to sea again. The Dutch mate, the stump of a black cheeroot stuck in the corner of his great mouth, hastened their movements with none too delicate prods of an iron bar.

Irene Matheson, reclining in a long cane chair on the narrow first class deck under a patched awning, raised her eyes from the book she had been reading. There was a wealth of pity in her soul for these helpless creatures formed like men and women yet herded together like beasts of the field. Suddenly she gasped and leaned forward. Something that the ship's officer had done sent a shudder thru her slender frame. In dumb protest, she looked at the broad white back of a man who stood by the rail. She could not see his face, but she thought that his sunburned neck was unsusually red and that the big brown hands which gripped the rope barrier had tightened their hold. It was as if a chord of sympathy had passed between these two. The slim girl in the chair felt that the silent message her brown eyes had flashed into space had come to rest in a highly sensitive receiving station encased in a suit of immaculate duck. The shoulders of the man she knew as Corrigan twitched. Her eyes widened with suppressed excitement, her tiny hands clutching at the sides of her chair, she saw him vault with the ease of an athlete onto the deck below. Half-a-dozen strides sufficed to cover the distance between him and the mate. She saw the iron bar descend pitilessly on the head of a native woman who had tried to secure a portion of her personal effects that had fallen as she staggered into that gaping hole, and then Corrigan's great fist shot out and the first mate fell heavily, the bar rolling into the scuppers. Feeling like a fair spectator in a Roman arena, Mrs. Matheson clapped her hands.

The mate, crawling painfully to his feet heard it and threw a malevolent glance in her direction. Swearing horribly, he reached out for the belaving-pin. Corrigan who was bending over the injured woman, caught his eye. The fat fingers that groped for the bar ceased their fumbling and the little pig eyes of the Dutchman quailed suddenly beneath a steely gaze that spoke volumes. Mrs Matheson had never heard Corrigan's voice. During the whole of the three days from Singapore he had remained silent as the sphynx, gazing ceaselessly out to sea like a man weighed down by a brooding sorrow. Under this sudden call to action the spell was broken.

"Leave that alone, my friend," advised Corrigan in measured tones. "You've gone a bit too far for my liking."

The mate gulped down something in his throat, shrugged his shoulders and remembered his position on the boat. Perhaps it was then he caught sight of the captain on his way from the bridge. He stooped and picked up the bar and Corrigan hit him again.

... upper, his eyes ablaze, ... the master of the situation.

"What does this mean?" he demanded in ... good English.

... square-jawed and ... rose to his full height. He stood like a colossus, his hands resting easily on his hips ... the fat mate holding his bruised jaw and the Dutchman ... the white man's handkerchief knotted round her head showed an ever-increasing patch of blood.

"I regret having to interfere with the discipline of your ship, Captain ...mburg," he said, "but ... man the situation explains itself."

The captain, broad and bearded, his white-topped cap cocked ... his arms over-long, ... thumped his great chest until it resounded like a drum.

"I am captain here, Mr. —," he ...

"Corrigan's my name," put in the other calmly. "When I see a man hit a woman, black or white, the niceties of marine etiquette are lost on me. I see red. However, as it appears I owe you an apology, I give it; but I give no guarantee not to repeat my action in a similar case of brutality."

The skipper choked his wrath. "I see," he said thickly. "You will also apologize to Mr Vanop."

FIVE LIVES IS TOLL OF HOTEL FIRE

Six Business Houses Destroyed by Morning Fire

THREE ARE UNIDENTIFIED

One of Victims in Hospital May Succumb

WILKESBARRE, Pa. — (By United Press)—Five persons were burned to death and several others seriously injured today when fire threatened to wipe out the business district of Plymouth, near here.

The smouldering ruins of six business places, destroyed at a loss of approximately $150,000 were being searched by firemen and police for additional victims.

The dead: Mrs. Mary Sherako, 50, owner of a hotel in which the fire started; Emily Petroki, 11, and three unidentified men whose charred bodies have been removed to a morgue.

The injured include Edward Alexdon, 35, who is in Mercy hospital, this city, with only slight chance of recovering.

The fire was discovered at 1:45 A. M. in the hotel conducted by Mrs. Sherako. A deputy sheriff passing the frame building saw flames shooting from a window. Sounding his police whistle he organized a rescue squad and aided half a dozen lodgers in the hotel to escape.

Firemen of Plymouth battled the flames and then called for assistance from nearby towns. Within an hour the fire had spread to the American Grocery store, a tailor shop, a meat market and other shops

PUMP PLANT IS PURCHASED

Reorganization of Chalmers Company Planned

Sale of the Chalmers Pump & Manufacturing Co., once accounted one of Lima's most promising concerns, was held at the plant late Wednesday under a court order, permitting the receiver in bankruptcy to dispose of the property.

Properties once valued at $100,000 were sold under the hammer for a bid of $36,400 by J. W Roby, who is said to have represented the former First National Bank, mortgage holders. Operation will be continued and the concern reorganized.

The concern capitalized for $250,000 was thrown into hands of a receiver about 18 months ago, A. L. Metheany being appointed by the court to take charge of and operate the plant. Prior to the proceedings Chalmers Brown and Fred Bizantz had been in active charge

Sale of the plant Wednesday was the second attempt made to dispose of the building and tools and machinery At a former sale, bids were received on part of the equipment, but the court would not allow the sale to be closed for less than the entire plant.

WAR ON DODGERS

Drive Planned on Those Who Evade Taxes

WASHINGTON — (By United Press) — A nation-wide drive against tax dodgers is about to be started by the government, it was learned at the internal revenue bureau today.

Warrants of distraint, attaching the property of tax delinquents, are being prepared and will be issued about Dec. 1. The government hopes to secure millions of dollars in back taxes by the drastic move.

Commissioner of internal revenue Blair's recent action in restricting the amount of time allowed for inspection of 1923 tax payment lists was the first step toward getting the drive under way.

These lists were used in preparing cases and put the warrants in shape for issuance With only 10 days to get everything set for the drive, Blair ordered the inspection of the lists restricted so that collectors would not be hampered in their preparations.

RUM RING BELIEVED UNCOVERED

Round up is Made Here Wednesday and Thursday

CONFESSION IS REPORTED

One of Those Held Said to Have Told All

Arrest of five men here late Wednesday and Thursday by R. T. Edwards, U. S. marshal of Toledo, will, it is believed, unearth operations of a gigantic liquor ring, whose ramifications are said to tap every community of importance in northwestern Ohio.

The five arrested are:

Nelson Edgington, 22, of 903½ S. Main-st.

Ivan Edgington, 35, a brother, same address.

Paul Potts, 25, S. Jackson-st.

Ferd Devore, 24, farmer, Allentown.

Noah Devore, 32, a brother.

With exception of Noah Devore, who is in the county jail serving out a $200 fine assessed for illegal possession of whisky, the defendants were all taken to Toledo Thursday morning for arraignment in federal commissioner's court on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

INVESTIGATION

Roundup of the five is the result of investigations carried on for the past month simultaneously by federal sleuths, county officers and police.

The first inkling of the operations of the ring was obtained by police several weeks ago when Nelson Edgington was arrested in a closed car. He managed to break a jug of liquor he was transporting, but Officers Roney and Cook found a bottle in his pocket which also contained whisky.

Arrest of Nelson Edgington was followed by a raid made on a farm belonging to Oreb Coon, near Spencerville, where a 50-gallon barrel containing more than 20 gallons of prewar whisky was unearthed. The cache is believed to belong to the two Edgingtons. Coon is said to be a relative

The next strand of evidence of the existence of an organized ring came to light Nov. 5 when county officers received a tip that a carload of liquor was being rushed into Lima in a Lexington car.

THREE ARRESTED

Deputies Sam Osbun and Al Smith intercepted the car north of Kemp and arrested Noah and Ferd Devore, of Allentown, and Paul Potts, Lima. The Devores were arraigned on a liquor charge and convicted, but Potts managed to evade prosecution by convincing the authorities he had been picked up on the road.

The car used by the Devores was claimed by Ivan Edgington, 903½ S. Main-st. He admitted loaning them the machine but professed that he did not know to what use it would be put.

Interest of federal officers was drawn into the affair a few days ago when Nelson Edgington was turned over to them by police. He is said to have signed a confession, the contents of which are held strictly secret.

The confession Deputy Marshal Edwards admitted, disclosed a connection between the men involved in the incidents and may involve a score of others in Allen-co and vicinity.

Arriving in Lima Wednesday noon with federal warrants, Edwards with assistance of police arrested Paul Potts in an address in

Census Bureau Modest

Estimate of 45,737 Population Disagrees With Postoffice Department Figures

Figures which were received here Thursday from the U. S. Census Bureau, in which the population of this city is estimated at 45,737, were discredited by officials of the postoffice and board of commerce, who in estimates recently completed, placed the population figure at 55,000.

Figures compiled by postoffice officials at the request of Postmaster General New, show an estimated increase over the 1920 official census of 8,680. The postal census, in which the population of the city is given at 55 000 has been submitted to the office at Washington. Superintendent of Mails G F. Winemiller said Thursday.

Tho it is not known here on what basis the government report was made, the figures given out by the census bureau are much too low, according to Winemiller, who asserted that according to postal estimates, the city added 5 000 to the 1920 census total of 41,000 by annexing new additions alone.

Winemiller is borne out in almost every detail by James Morton, manager of the Board of commerce, in a statement made Thursday, placing the population as shown by figures recently compiled by the commerce board above 50,000. New territory increase similar to that given by postoffice officials is shown in Morton's report.

The postoffice report here, according to Winemiller, is based on the number of possible stops which are made each day by all carriers in the city. This number is multiplied by four and one-half, the lowest average number of persons for each stop, giving a conservative population estimate At present, approximately 12 500 stops are made by local carriers.

Figures compiled by City Engineer John Jewhorst, at the request of Postmaster Gale, show that during the past four years 800 acres of land were taken into the city in new additions. It was on this figure that the approximate increase of 5,000 was based.

No official government census will be taken until 1930, the end of the ten year period. Figures received here Thursday are simply estimates by officials of the federal census department.

In an attempt to recoup her fortune, Mrs Smuts and her husband recently opened an inn at Marlowe, Mass., defying the gem she claimed had been the cause of all her misfortune with the name "Blue Dimond Inn."

Just two weeks ago the inn was destroyed by fire and the couple was forced to live in a furnished room in a lodging house in Boston.

Today the woman who once owned her own theatre in London, faces the latest curse of the diamond in a room at a hospital here where her husband is lying with a gun-shot wound in his chest.

JOHN D. NETS $111,000,000

NEW YORK — (By United Press) — John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has increased his fortune $111,000,000 by the phenomenal rise in his holdings in Standard Oil stocks, it was figured here today.

The senate committee while investigating the oil industry, disclosed the holdings of Rockefeller in various Standard Oil units and from this data it has been able to figure his approximate gain for the year.

His holdings in nine of the company's units have increased more than $98,000,000 in market value. His dividends from these stocks this year will not be less than $13,200,000, bringing the total increase to his fortune to $111,000,000.

SHOTS FIRED AT PROWLER

"Mystery Man" Peeps Into Window of Home

POLICE POSSE CALLED

Trail Lost as Fugitive Escapes in Darkness

After nearly a month of idleness, the "mysterious prowler", who for weeks struck terror into the hearts of fashionable west-end residents, resumed his nocturnal activities about 2 a. m. Wednesday and narrowly escaped with his life when he was discovered and routed in N. Elizabeth-st amid a fusilade of bullets.

His first visit, made to the home of Fred Gowdy, at 156 N. Elizabeth-st, came near being his last. Gowdy saw a head raised above the window ledge, peering into his living room. He walked out of the room quietly, so as not to alarm the fellow, and procured a revolver

SHOTS FIRED

He dashed out of the front door just in time to see the fellow, who had in some way become alarmed, take to his heels He shot at him several times and went to the 'phone and called police headquarters.

Gowdy gave the desk sergeant his name and informed him that he had just shot at the prowler but was not sure whether he had "winged" him or not.

Sergeant Edwards, with a detachment of police, rushed to Gowdy's home. Using the house as a center, police spread out fanwise and scoured the vicinity for the prowler but found no trace of him The fellow had vanished into thin air just as a score of times before he had eluded the police dragnet

Following numerous home burglaries and prowler calls which were received by police by the dozen each week for several months up to four weeks ago, many west-end residents have procured guns and kept them handy about the house.

After the warm reception which he received at the Gowdy home police are of the opinion that the prowler will discontinue his operations for it will be next to impossible for him to continue making his "will o' wisp" getaway continually.

PASTOR HOLDS RELIGIOUS MANIA LED TO SUICIDE

Husband Believes Sermon May Have Inspired Act

Authorities Cling to Theory Woman Was Slain

COLUMBUS, Ohio — (By United Press) — Detective C. Cox, who has been working on the mysterious case since the finding of the body, announced today he is convinced Mrs. Sheatsley committed suicide.

"I have carefully checked every statement made by members of the Sheatsley family and I find no discrepencies." Cox said.

"I am convinced that Mrs. Sheatsley crawled into the furnace feet first and held to the edge of the cleanout door below."

RELIGIOUS FANATIC

COLUMBUS, Ohio — (By United Press) — Insensible to pain because of a strange religious fanaticism which had unbalanced her mind and lured toward self destruction by her husband's eloquent description of heaven. Mrs. Addie Sheatsley crept in upon the red hot coals of the Lutheran parsonage furnace and burned to death.

This, according to her husband, the Rev. C. C Sheatsley, is the solution of the now famous furnace mystery which came into being last Monday night when the pastor found his wife's remains smouldering in the furnace firebox.

COLUMBUS — (By United Press) — It is possible that an insane person of certain type may become so insensible to pain as to permit such a method of suicide as may have caused the death of Mrs. Sheatsley, Dr. William H. Pritchard, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane, told the United Press today.

Dr. Pritchard recalled the well-authenticated stories of the ascetics of India those strange religious zealots who are able to fast for unbelievable periods, who can walk barefoot on beds of upturned spikes; who prance upon red hot coals in uncanny religious ceremonies and emerge unhurt.

From his experience as a missionary in India, where it is the custom for Hindu women to cast themselves upon the burning funeral pyres of their husbands, the minister believes that it would not have been physically impossible for his wife to enter the miniature inferno

"Those familiar with violent insanity tell me," he said, "that certain forms, especially those resulting from religious zealotry, often leave the body totally insensible to pain I do not question that this is what happened in Mrs Sheatsley's case"

Authorities today accepted the minister's explanation "for what it might be worth in the light of future developments" and continued to persue evidence in support of their belief that Mrs. Sheatsley was murdered John R. King, county prosecutor, now devoting all his time to the case, left on an early train for Canton to question the furnace victim's aged mother

BELIEVES SUICIDE

Rev. Sheatsley gave the first intimation of his theory of his wife's death in a formal statement to King yesterday, declaring he was convinced she had committed suicide.

Later discussing the case with ... told Cox his wife had been deeply impressed by the sermon he preached last Sunday night on "Paradise Restored." Before dawn the next morning, the day of her death, Mrs. Sheatsley told her 14 year-old daughter, Elizabeth, "Your father will never preach a better sermon than he did last night"

Elizabeth had come into her mother's room after hearing what she believed were her mother's groans.

The sermon Rev. Sheatsley said, was largely a description of heaven in which the minister gave as his opinion that heaven is the garden of Eden restored, "thru Jesus, the second Adam."

Noah and Ferd Devore were served with warrants, charging them with conspiracy, at the county jail where they were confined.

Ivan Edgington, the fifth man, evaded arrest in probate court Wednesday morning when Edwards missed him by a few minutes

Edgington was in court to claim the car used by the Devores Judge Hamilton adjourned the hearing to allow Edgington to bring in his bill of sale He had gone after the paper when Edwards showed up with a warrant

A 20 hour search made by police and deputy sheriffs failed to find Edgington, who seemed to have become suspicious and completely disappeared

Thursday by a hoax he was induced to show up and was nabbed A message to Edgington's attorney informed him Sheriff Crosson had returned and was ready to turn over the car, if the court ordered him to.

The information brought the fugitive hurrying to his lawyer's office where he was arrested.

FURNACE DEATH UNSOLVED

fanaticism theory, Rev. Sheatsley said his wife was not with him in India and that she knew nothing, except what he had told her of the weird tricks of the Hindu women.

"I do not believe that my wife could have been familiar with the customs of native India," he said "I believe her act resulted from a sudden seizure of insanity."

The pastor and his four children today were in Paris, Ohio, where a part of the wife's remains are being interred in the family burial plot

CHEMICAL TEST

Meanwhile the state chemist here was examining a segment of Mrs Sheatsley's esophagus in an effort to determine whether she was breathing when her head went in over the glowing coals

Detectives were still at work in Bexley with orders from Prosecutor King not to pass up the least shadow of a clew. The suddenness of the tragedy and the deep mystery in which the entire affair is shrouded, has left that exclusive residential district where the minister and his family are the best known residents, with a bad case of nerves.

Rumors of a solution of the mystery fly about the streets and the campus of Capital university, where Rev Sheatsley is a faculty member, with lightning rapidity. Scarcely an hour passes but that some new report is circulated. Newspapers in Columbus are swamped with inquiries about the latest confession in the Sheatsley case.

AUTHORITIES BAFFLED

COLUMBUS — (By Associated Press)—In a determined effort to piece together all the loose threads in the domestic life of Mrs Addie Sheatsley, wife of Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, pastor of one of the leading churches of the fashionable Bexley suburb, whose cremated body was found in the furnace of the Sheatsley home Monday evening, so that it might be ascertained whether the mystery of her death is finally to be established as suicide or murder, County Prosecutor John R. King carried his investigation today into the circle of the dead woman's blood relatives

TO QUESTION MOTHER

Accompanied by City Detective Harry Carson, King left for Paris, home of Mrs Sheatsley's mother, near Canton, early today to go over with the aged mother the life history of the daughter from infancy down thru the intervening years to her marriage with Rev Sheatsley and the domestic relations in the Sheatsley home up to the time of the daughter's tragic death. The aged mother made her home with the Sheatsleys for several years up until about a year ago

By getting the life history of Mrs. Sheatsley, Prosecutor King hopes to be able to strengthen or completely disprove the theory advanced by many and clung to by County Coroner Murphy that Mrs Sheatsley climbed into the furnace and deliberately destroyed herself King, notwithstanding the coroner's theory of suicide, maintains that Mrs Sheatsley was a victim of foul play, that it would have been impossible for her to enter the furnace with a bed of live coals in it and close the door behind her

INQUIRY INTO LIFE

While at Paris King also expects to question brothers of the dead woman to ascertain what light they may throw on her life While the prosecutor is conducting his investigation in Paris it is expected that little will be done here toward solving the mystery until his return as the investigation is completely within his hand. Columbus police cooperating with him and under his direction. Bexley, while practically a continuation of Columbus is an independent corporation not under jurisdiction of the Columbus police department.

GLASS IN FURNACE

CANTON O—(By Associated Press) — Prosecutor John R King of Franklin co who arrived here this morning to continue his investigation of the mysterious death of Mrs Addie Sheatsley, wife of Rev C V. Sheatsley, whose cremated body was found in the furnace of the Sheatsley home, in Bexley a suburb of Columbus, Monday will attend the final funeral rites at Paris this [illegible]

Prosecutor King made an appointment with members of the Sheatsley family at the home of the victim's brother. Charles Sponseller here for ten o'clock this morning but at noon had not made an appearance altho he called the house by telephone Rev Sheatsley, who said he came from Paris to Canton today at the request of Prosecutor King waited at the Sponseller home until after ten o'clock and then returned to Paris.

Rev. G M Schmucker a friend of the Sheatsley family family, said the prosecutor had made arrangements with him to attend the funeral.

At the Sponseller home today Rev Sheatsley after speaking comforting words to the aged mother of Mrs Sheatsley, said he was still firmly convinced that his wife committed suicide.

"My theory that she placed herself in the fire pit was materially strengthened yesterday afternoon when before I left our home a neighbor called and told me that she had twice crawled into the furnace of her home to catch a pet bird

"The only new angle in the case that I know of is that a piece of glass was found in the ashes of the furnace This may throw some new light on the tragedy."

		Double-Face Number	List Price
The Sweetest Story Ever Told (Stults) / Ma Curly-headed Baby (Pleasanton-Sosso) (Gibson)	Hulda Lashanska / Hulda Lashanska	1044	$1.50

A love song dear to thousands in the English-speaking world for its quaint charm and age-old sentiment; and a love song of a different type—the crooning of a mammy of the old South to her little one.

La alegria del Batallón (The Joy of the Regiment) (Serrano) In Spanish / Tristes Amores (Love's Darkness) (Mantegaza) In Spanish	José Mardones / José Mardones	921	1.50

The Spanish zarzuela, or musical comedy, always has stirring music. Here is a jovial bass song from a famous one, rich, powerful, yet smooth, with wholesome laughter. The companion song, to the violin, flute and piano, is in graver mood.

Concert Songs

Punchinello (Westbody-Molloy) / Shipmates o' Mine (Tschemacher-Sanderson)	Royal Dadmun / Royal Dadmun	45455	1.00

English baritone songs for men. Each tells a story; tells it plainly and intelligibly—with clean, manly sentiment.

Light Vocal Selections

Drifting to You / At the End of the Sunset Trail	Marcia Freeze / Lewis James	19483	.75

These artists team together agreeably in songs of youth and love-sentiment, of which these are two of the best recent ones. The first is in waltz time and has pleasant harmonies.

Everybody Loves My Baby / De Clouds Are Gwine to Roll Away (with violin, guitar, harmonica, ukulele)	Aileen Stanley / Vernon Dalhart	19486	.75

A darkly mysterious baby-blues love-song, and a rain-song composed by Wendell Hall's chief partner. Both are catchy.

Dance Records

Go, Emmaline—Fox Trot / Words—Fox Trot	The Benson Orchestra of Chicago	19484	.75

Splendid "all-purpose" fox trots, not noisy but full of character notwithstanding. The first has odd moments here and there, and fine piano work. The second is light, cheerful and melodious.

Have a Little Fun—Fox Trot / Out of a Million You're the Only One—Fox Trot (with vocal refrain)	Waring's Pennsylvanians / Waring's Pennsylvanians	19471	.75

Vigorous and strong-toned fox trots. In the first the old "round" of childhood days, "Three Blind Mice," appears in the middle of a modern fox trot. The second ends like a brass-band number, with a specially powerful climax.

Until Tomorrow—Tango Fox Trot / Clovita—Tango Fox Trot (with vocal refrain)	International Novelty Orchestra	19485	.75

Interesting recent examples of the "Tango Fox Trot"—Northern derivations of the Mexican national style in this fascinating dance. They will dance to any fox trot steps.

Favorite Irish Jigs—Medley "Dublin Jig"—"Goose in the Bog"—"Connaughman's Rambles" / Favorite Irish Reels—Medley "The Old Torn Petticoat"—"Off to Dublin"—"The Boys of Lough"	McConnell's Four Leaf Shamrocks	19446	.75

Two excellent specimens of the traditional music of Ireland—the jigs and reels that are the expression of the irrepressible spirit of the Gael. Authoritatively rendered by violin, piccolo and piano.

FOREMEN'S CLUB HAS BANQUET

"Keep Studying." Speaker Says at "Y" Wednesday

NEW MEMBERS RECEIVED

125 Hear Story of Industry, Trained Leadership

"Present day foremen must keep studying and preparing for the job ahead of them or else the men directly under them will step into their shoes," Charles E. Watkins, personal director of the product division of the General Motors Corporation at Muncie, Ind., told 125 members and guests of the Lima Foreman's club Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Watkins' subject was "The Need of Trained Leadership in Industry."

"The foremen's job is excessive only. He must be a man who knows human nature and is able to lead the men who work under him.

"Industry may be divided into three parts, production, finance and the human element, the last of which is 60 per cent of industry," Watkins said. "Therefore it is highly important that we get trained leaders to handle the jobs as foremen," he said.

Those who heard Watkins claimed after the talk that it was at least on a par with that given by Sherman Rogers, "the lumberjack orator," before the club at the Elks' Home last spring.

Twenty-five new members were taken into the club at the meeting Wednesday evening. More will be added from time to time, Victor Bird, "Y" industrial secretary, said Thursday morning.

Whiting Williams, noted industrial expert, will talk before the club at its meeting in December, Bird said.

MRS. HARDING IS SINKING

President in Close Touch With Distinguished Patient

MARION, O. — (By United Press)—Mrs. Warren G. Harding today has passed into a semi-coma and her physician entertains grave doubts that she will ever again completely regain consciousness.

Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, in a bulletin today said:

"Mrs. Harding was restless most of the night.

"This morning she is in a semi-comatose condition. Her heart action is only fair.

"She is very weak and exhausted."

The White House is keeping in close communication with Dr. Sawyer concerning Mrs. Harding's condition, it was learned today.

President Coolidge talked to Dr. Sawyer over long distance last night and was informed that the late president's widow was believed to be sinking.

The following telegram from President Coolidge was received today:

"Mrs. Coolidge and I send affectionate regards. You are constantly in our thoughts and we anxiously await word of your continued improvement."

George B. Christian, the late President Harding's secretary, took the message into the sick room and read it to Mrs. Harding.

"Isn't that nice," Mrs. Harding said. It was one of the few times she had spoken in the last several days.

BOGUS LACE IS SOLD HERE

Housewives Warned by Morton Against Canvassers

ARREST IS THREATENED

Absence of License Arouses Suspicions in Store

Warning was issued Thursday to Lima housewives by James E. Morton, manager of the Lima Board of Commerce, to be on the watch for two women who are canvassing the city selling "genuine, imported Irish lace."

The two, if apprehended, will be charged by Morton with operating without a license and with misrepresenting the goods they are said to be selling.

Their method of operation, Morton said, is to approach the housewife or store clerk with a piece of linen which they claim to be hand-made and imported from Belfast, Ireland. "We are selling this at a sacrifice in order to raise money to get our trunk out of the Canadian customs house," they are alleged to say.

FLIMSY EXCUSES

First report of the two, one of whom is an elderly lady of approximately 45 years of age, and the other a girl of about 15 years, came from the Jones Hardware Co. Wednesday afternoon. The pair attempted to sell some of their lace to Miss Zerelda Smith, a clerk in the store, and when Manager Paul Sweger asked to see their city selling license they made some flimsy excuses, wrapped up the lace and left the store. Reports came from the west side of the town that they were operating there after leaving the Jones store.

In order to back up their statements that the lace is imported from Ireland, the two talk with an Irish brogue, it is said. Their method of operation is said to be similar to that of two other women who sold a quantity of lace to girls at the Locomotive Works and the Garford Motor Truck Co. last January and then left town before they could be apprehended. The lace afterward was found to be machine-made.

Housewives are asked by Morton to telephone the Board of Commerce if they come in contact with the two.

New Way to Stop Night Coughing

Those who have suffered the tortures of sleeplessness due to continual coughing at night, and who as a result often feel utterly worn-out and useless during the day, need no longer permit their systems to be weakened and their vitality sapped by this distressing ailment. For through a very simple treatment the trouble can be stopped almost at once, and people often get their full night's rest undisturbed after the very first trial.

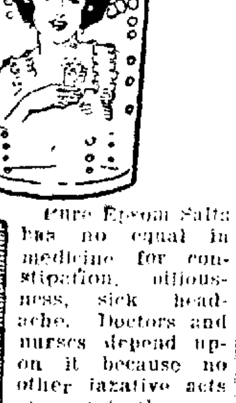

Here is the method: Simply get a bottle of the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery from any good drug store. Then to-night before retiring take one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. This prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals the soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which is the real cause of the cough. So your throat is left wonderfully soothed and cleared of irritating gatherings, you can sleep soundly and restfully, and the cough is usually gone in a very short time.

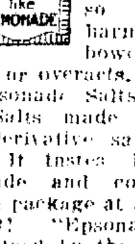

Dr. King's New Discovery is a remarkable remedy for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, sore throat, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, laryngitis and bronchial asthma. At all good druggists. Ask for Goitre is a deep-seated constitutional disease. Its dangers are often underestimated. It saps the vitality, weakens the natural defensive powers of the body, thereby rendering its victims peculiarly susceptible to disease of all kinds. Thousands are annually taken by Lagrippe, Pneumonia, Kidney and Heart Trouble, who might have pulled through and might not have contracted the disease at all had not their system been undermined by the pernicious influence of a goitre. And when this comes, it may be too late for help. Will you not profit by the mistakes of those who have traveled this road before you and take steps to save yourself this sad ending? Do not wait and run the risk of YOUR goitre becoming as hideous as those you see on the street every day. Fill out the coupon today and get the free large home treatment.

This Plainly Shows How This Remarkable Home Treatment Removes all Traces of Goitre, Leaving Neck Smooth and Natural.

Joyful Recovery

I know that you will be glad to hear that the reason for my not ordering further treatment is that you have entirely removed my goitre. Thus writes Gr... Mayers of Conemaugh, Pa. The enlargement has entirely disappeared and I am feeling fine, so do not believe that further treatment is necessary.

Please accept my sincerest thanks for the great service you have done me.

After Four Years

It gives me much pleasure to write you at the end of four years, since you removed my goitre, that there is not a sign or symptom of a return of the trouble. I think your treatment is wonderful and everyone that has a goitre ought to know of it and give it a trial. I cannot tell you how happy I am at being rid of that ugly old goitre and I give you and your wonderful treatment all the praise. I shall never let an opportunity pass to speak a good word for you. Sincerely yours—MISS LIZZIE THOMAS, South Boston, Va.

No More Treatment

I am happy to write you that I do not think I need further treatment. My goitre has entirely disappeared and I am feeling so good in every way that I feel entirely safe in dropping the treatment. You have a wonderful treatment, and I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me, not only as regards the goitre but in general health. I am in better health now than I have been for a long time. God bless you and your wonderful treatment. Again thanking you, I am—MISS ODELIA ROSENBAUM.

Goitre Symptoms Gone

I am very glad to write that I believe my goitre is gone. There is no longer any swelling and as the disagreeable symptoms and sensations have all disappeared and I am in such fine general health, I feel that I can safely discontinue the treatment. I feel stronger and weigh more than I have in years.

I have told a great many about your treatment and shall not miss an opportunity to recommend it to those who are suffering from that disfiguring and health-destroying disease.

Again thanking you for the great good your treatment has done me, and wishing you continued success in your work, I am, Sincerely yours—MRS. MARTHA CODE, Gibsonsville, N. C.

Proud of Her Work

I am so happy to write you that my goitre is gone. I am so happy I cannot find words to express my gratitude to you for taking that unsightly tumor off my neck. I am like a child with a new toy. I want every one to see it and know about it. I shall never cease recommending your wonderful treatment to all I see with goitre. It went away so fast the last week that I couldn't believe my eyes, and I was so happy that I thanked God over and over again that I was told of your wonderful treatment.

I thank you a hundred times for the great service you have rendered me and know you will rejoice with me when you hear of your victory over my very stubborn case.

—MISS E. M. S.

To Spread the News

I cannot thank you enough for what your treatment did for me. It is the most wonderful goitre medicine in the world, and I will do all I can to spread the good news to goitre sufferers I may meet and hear of. You have removed my goitre and I want others to know where they can be removed also. Goitre is a very humiliating malady and no woman should put off having it attended to.

Again thanking you for the great service you have rendered me, I am MISS NETTIE DILDINE, Stroudsburg, Pa.

THRILLS ABOUND IN ARCTIC

Greater Than Africa, Says Snow After Cruise

SHIP AFIRE IN ICEBERGS

Boy, 14, in Expedition, Says it's Real Life

BY PHILIP J. SINNOTT

SAN FRANCISCO — (Special) —If you're looking for thrills, don't think altogether of chasing big game thru the African Veldt, where it's a long ways between water holes

Just cruise along the Alaskan coast in a small schooner, and you'll get all sorts of them dodging whales and lassoing polar bears according to Sidney Snow. And as Sidney chased giraffes all over Africa in his dad's flivver, he ought to know.

Young Snow, son of H. A. Snow, curator of the Oakland Museum of Natural History, is just back from breaking thru polar ice filming and bagging big game specimens.

And in addition to the sport of the chase his trip included a narrow escape from death in the floes when the vessel caught fire; discovery of the bodies of Stefansson expedition victims; breakage of a crankshaft while the ship was in the Arctic wilderness, and several close calls from having the schooner ground to bits by polar ice

THEY GOT THE BEAR

Snow's jaunt to the Arctic was made on the fur trading schooner Herman, commanded by Captain Louis L. Lane veteran of northern waters. The broken crankshaft forced the Herman into St. Michael for repairs, and it was two months before the trip could be resumed

"Don't tackle it," warned Alaska when the Herman's crew announced it was going north. This year's ice was the worst in a decade

But the Herman and Snow were out for thrills. And the first day out of St. Michael's they commenced getting them.

A huge polar bear was sighted. Capt. Lane snared it with a lasso then threw other ropes over it. Then the fun began, with the bear fighting, snarling and trying to escape

It finally was overpowered and drawn alongside. A submerged net and a derrick landed it on deck.

SOLVE KARLUK MYSTERY

Cruising along the Herman came to Herald Island and Lane and Snow paid it the first visit of any white men in 10 years. And this visit solved part of one of the northland's mysteries — the fate of the men lost to the world with the schooner Karluk of Stefansson's expedition was lost in 1914

Skeletons of four men gave mute testimony to their fate. They had frozen to death, for there was food in their supplies, and their guns had ammunition

It was a thrill to clear the mystery. It was a thrill for Snow to take possession of the island for the United States. And it was a thrill as the filming of big game continued when a whale Snow was filming from a smaller boat, suddenly attacked the small craft. Captain Lane harpooned the monster just as it was about to crush the boat with its tail.

"Say this is my idea of real fun," says Eddie O'Brien 14, who went along as a steersman

"Africa has nothing on the Arctic for adventure," avers Snow. "If you feel too blase, let them take a trip to the north."

WOMEN START CLUB TO STUDY DIVORCES

PRAGUE — (By Associated Press) The divorcees of Prague have organized a mutual benefit society. They have their own clubhouse, library of law books and a magazine called 'Rozvedena,' meaning 'The Divorced.'

Increasing numbers of divorces in central Europe, along with economic dangers which confront many women with children brought about the launching of this society, of which Mme. Aupicova, divorced wife of an officer in one of the Cechoslovakian ministries, is president. Members must learn the divorce laws and must know the rights of women. Efforts will be made to force divorced husband to pay alimony promptly and otherwise fulfill his duties as prescribed by law

WOMAN'S FALL ON BUTCHER KNIFE FATAL

WARROAD, Minn — The death of Mrs. Elsie Wheeler, 31, in a lonely homestead cabin in the Northwest Angle country was declared as accidental from a fall on a butcher knife reported country officers who returned here yesterday from a 320-mile hike thru the wilderness

Mrs. Wheeler's body was found last Thursday by her husband and another man. Homesteaders of the region walked the 160 miles here to notify the officers, who returned with them. A coroner's jury of homesteaders was called and it decided indications were Mrs. Wheeler had died when she fell while using the knife to spread paste for noodles

The Wheelers recently came here from Clearwater, Kan., to take up a homestead

CLEANUP IN TOLEDO

TOLEDO — A squad of dry agents arrested six men and three women bringing to total arrests during the past two days for violation of the liquor laws to 43. NEW OFFICE IS NEAR READY

Commissions to Change Headquarters Dec. 1

County commissioners will move into their new offices in the basement of the court house on or before December 1, it was announced Wednesday

Workmen have renovated and remodeled the interior of the former juvenile court chambers, making three rooms.

Commissioners will have one main room for holding meetings, and two smaller rooms that can be used for conferences.

Under present condition, commissioners are obliged to either transact all business in their offices in full view and hearing of anyone who happens to come in, or retire to the corridor or a wash room to talk

Even there they are subject to intrusion of salesmen, and visitors, who often intrude on conversations which are no concern to them.

The present commissioners office will be taken over by J. L. Main, state inspector of accounts, who is to spend about four months here auditing the county office accounts.

When Main completes his work here, Harry E. Botkins, county treasurer, will take over the room.

Completion of the commissioners' offices will place the board of revaluation, commissioners, juvenile court, jury rooms, county surveyor, janitor's office and lower court room on the ground floor of the building.

MUSCLE SHOALS PROBLEM UP

Future of Power Plant to Confront Congress

WASHINGTON — (By United Press)—The government is going to operate its big power project at Muscle Shoals—making fertilizer and nitrates—leaders of the various forces in congress seemed agreed today

But while there is agreement on the general question, a vast amount of disagreement is apparent over methods to be used and it is still somewhat doubtful if a bill carrying out the scheme can be adopted when the short session convenes a week from next Monday.

Muscle Shoals tangle will be the first question to be fought out in the senate. Under a unanimous consent agreement reached in the closing hours of the last session the various bills are to be taken up within three days after the senate meets.

Happy Women Seldom Smoke

VIENNA — (By Associated Press) — Happy and satisfied women almost never smoke, in the opinion of Dr. R. Hefstaetter gynecologist who some time ago created a stir by his assertion that smoking alters women's faces making them look more masculine than feminine

Women who smoke much have almost invariably contracted the habit at a time when they were especially unhappy, he says in his book "The Smoking Woman."

"Women regard smoking as something smart" he continues. "Smoking affords them an opportunity to execute a surprisingly large number of playful and therefore graceful movements and positions. It is a significant fact that the smoking woman is much more concerned about motions than which she goes on she smokes than is the man for whom the accompanying movements such as the play of features, bear the character of automatic unconscious movements.

Move The Stand

Orders of the city that the popcorn stand near the corner of Main and High-sts, must be moved apparently were ignored yesterday. The stand was still in place last night with "business as usual."

The affair which should amount to no more than the simple request of City Hall and prompt action on the part of the real estate firm responsible for the renting of space for the shack has taken the form of a general muddle. This is to be regretted.

No one has a legal right to rent city property without official sanction and this has not been given in this case. There are many other angles to be considered.

Not long ago the city required a crippled news dealer to move his shanty from Main-st. While our sympathy is with the unfortunate fellow who was seeking to make a living in this manner, it is admitted that the place was an eye sore and the city was within its rights in the action.

If the streets are not open to unfortunates of this kind they certainly should not be open to an equally bad condition put into the thoroughfares. What goes for the goose also should be sauce for the gander.

The downtown section of the city has been improved in appearance many fold within the last year. A great amount of money has been spent by taxpayers for this work and individuals cannot expect to continue practices started years ago when the city was a village if we are to have an up-to-date city. Everyone should have enough civic spirit to work toward this end.

The city is justified in requiring the popcorn stand to be moved. No delay should be allowed in execution of the order. But if there is a weakening and the thing is permitted to remain, the bars should be taken down and the news stand replaced and other privileges recently revoked be reinstated. We do not believe anyone who has any pride in their city would want this to be done.

Deathbed Weddings

Racing with death in an auto, a Boston girl arrived in Albany, N. Y., in time to marry her sweetheart four hours before he died from injuries received when he fell under a railroad train.

These deathbed marriages are not uncommon. In one case an English woman sailed for India and married her lover, whom she had not seen for three years, barely before the death-rattle sounded in his throat.

It is inspiring to know that, in our blase generation, there still are multitudes who believe love is eternal, and not merely an episode this side of the grave.

Are lovers re-united in the Great Beyond? A belief to this effect is the supreme comfort for countless millions who have found "the right person."

In true love men and women are closest to the spiritual.

Time does not lessen affection. Tears dim the eyes of the aged as they summon in memory the mate or sweetheart who passed on long ago.

The unhappily married must fervently hope that death will be an absolute divorce from their unfortunate choice. Many would vote for extinction in preference to eternal life if they thought they would be condemned forever to their earthly mates.

Behind everything is a wise and definite reason.

The reason for unhappy marriages has baffled philosophers in all centuries. Socrates believed that when a soul entered the world it was separated into two beings, a male and a female. These wander the earth, seeking reunion. If a man or woman weds the "wrong half," misery follows.

Many mystics believe that an unhappy marriage is an affliction visited on the unfortunate—a burden from this life, a problem. Apparently agreeing with the mystics are people who, "make the best of a bad bargain." Surely, for them, death should be an eternal release.

Gambling At Cards

The mah jongg craze is beginning to wane. It still has millions of enthusiasts. And it will be popular for years. But cards are coming into their own again.

This runs true to history. Thousands upon thousands of gambling games have been invented. But invariably man goes back to "the greasy pasteboards."

When people play cards, they are handling a gambling device so many thousands of years old that the origin is lost in the mist of antiquity.

The very ancient Hindus had a game called "Chatmaj"—which, many experts believe, was the origin of playing cards. "Chatmaj" (the name of "four rajahs or kings") was really highly complicated chess.

Life to the ancients was a lottery. They symbolized this belief in the four divisions of cards—hearts for love out of which life is born, clubs for knowledge, diamonds for wealth and the acorn or spade for death.

In the Middle Ages card games took clearer shape. Hearts came to represent bravery. Spades represented swords. Diamonds signified shields. Clubs were symbolic of army provisions. It was a military age, and cards became games of war.

The four kings stood for the famous champions of long ago—David, Alexander, Julius Ceasar and Charlemagne.

The four queens represented Argine, Pallas, Esther and Judith—who were, respectively, symbolic of majesty, wisdom, piety and fortitude. In some decks of cards, with a little imagination, you can discern these qualities in the facial expressions of the grotesque ladies.

The four knaves represented the gallant captains, Ogier, Launcelot, Lahire and Hector de Gallard.

But if you ask a Chinaman, he will tell you that his race invented cards thousands of years before these celebrated personages were born. To a Chinaman, cards represent the stars, the human virtues and, in their various combinations, about everything under the sun.

It's the oldest game, and it will be played when mah jongg and even baseball are gone and forgotten.

NIGHT TERRORS

A child has relatively more [illegible] nervous than an adult. A child may have a convulsion with the onset of some fever in which an adult would have only a chill. All of us have nightmare [illegible] children are more likely to [illegible] than adults. There is a difference. In nightmare one remains quietly in bed and asleep, tho perhaps feebly struggling or uttering faint groans or smothered cries as the famous snugglesnack lingers at one's liver; but the child with night terrors awakes in wild alarm, screams, clings in terror to mother or other person but seems unable to recognize members of the family generally, perhaps sees a bear or dog or spider, quiets down finally and goes to sleep again. Next day the child usually has no recollection of the attack. We can generally recall something about a nightmare the morning after.

Night terrors occurring again and again must be looked upon as an evidence of [illegible] defect. The child who has night terrors repeatedly may have a neurotic inheritance or a neurotic environment and training, or what is usually the case, both of these handicaps. I will explain what these terms mean presently. First I should say that the provocative [illegible] hours, digestive disturbances from improper diet, fright [illegible] mental shocks such as [illegible] of bedtime stories [illegible] fully active in [illegible].

Frequent night terrors in childhood is a common notation in the early history of epilepsy.

Epilepsy is a typical neurosis, a disorder of the nervous system without any definite [illegible] able structural cause. A physician cannot diagnose epilepsy by any kind of examination or test of the patient between attacks, nor is there any definite change by which a pathologist can determine that a subject has had epilepsy or succumbed to an attack of it. Many other disorders of the nervous system are neuroses, notably hysteria, migraine (periodic sick headache), inebriety, drug habituation, the railroad spine, (illiterate [illegible]) writers cramp, neurasthenia (whatever that is) and psychasthenia (an invention of nerve specialists). When a "neurasthenic" individual has excessive fear or anxiety about anything his anxiety neurosis is dubbed psychasthenia.

There is at least a family prevalence of the neuroses—inheritance, as it is usually called, tho it is difficult to explain why an alcoholic parent is more likely to have epileptic or hysterical children or why the children of a hysterical father, let us say, are more prone to contract drug habits, unless we given considerable credit to environment. Anyhow you now understand what neurotic inheritance mean and what a neuropathic family is. If a man is of the quality or kind that uses tobacco excessively or drinks moderately or "socially" or has litigation spine his children are more likely to be epileptic, hysterical or "queer." Poor stuff begets poor stuff.

TEN LITTLE TOES

Ten little toes, ten little toes,
Where they must travel to nobody knows,
Tiny and tender now,
Lovely and slender now,
Sweet and as pink as the buds of a rose.

Ten little toes, ten little toes,
Now to the market this little pig goes,
And your old daddy is Thinking how glad he is
Singing the old rhyme which everyone knows.

Ten little toes, ten little toes,
Pearls of perfection in two little rows,
Glistening and shiny
And lovely and tiny,
Sweet is the laughter whenever dad blows.

Ten little toes, ten little toes,
Made for the green grass and made for the snows
This is my prayer for you,
This is my care for you
Smooth be your path to the long journey's close.

DO WE want to kill women and children? No, of course not. Of the 522 persons killed last year in Massachusetts, 302 were pedestrians, 200 of this number being little children. Faulty brakes were responsible for most of these accidents. Line your brakes with Rusco then you'll know they'll hold.

Stops! in 20 feet~going at 20 miles an hour!

THE Police are satisfied with 37 feet, going at 20 miles an hour. And that is the standard set by Automotive Engineers, too. But Rusco-lined two-wheel brakes, properly adjusted, will stop your car in 20 feet going 20 miles an hour.

It's the asbestos and the weave

SHODDY Asbestos does not make good Brake Lining. Long fibre Canadian Crysotile Asbestos only goes into Rusco. This is the world's best. And only the giant Rusco looms, patented, built and used exclusively by the Russell Company, can weave this mineral-metal fabric. Rusco's "packed-in," solid weave makes long wear doubly sure.

Standard equipment

WHEN cars like the Packard, Paige or Franklin leave the factory their brakes are safeguarded by Rusco Lining. Rusco's performance in service is far above standard. Yet Rusco costs no more than the shoddy kind of lining. Careful buying will certainly help to make sure your safety. Insist that the repair man or dealer give you Rusco.

CHURCH IN NEED OF MINISTERS

Church Extension Head Pleads for Trained Leaders

PHILADELPHIA — Shortage of adequately trained ministerial leadership forms the most serious problems facing protestantism, the Rev. Dr. D. D. Forsyth, corresponding secretary of the board of home missions and church extension of the Methodist Episcopal church, said in a report today to the annual meeting of the board.

Quoting from a statement by the commission on religious and social surveys Dr. Forsyth said that of the 101,000 protestant churches in America, 15 per cent had full time resident ministers; 18 per cent resident ministers giving only part time service, 54 per cent absentee pastors and that 13 per cent were without pastors.

"This same commission," the report continued, "makes the further statement that on any given Sunday of the year practically one-half of these churches are not open for religious worship. Another conclusion that might very readily be drawn from such a study is the fact that the Protestant churches in this country, which are decaying and breaking down are almost invariably served by absentee ministers. One illustration of this statement is found in a report made by the church federation of Ohio. In a survey made by that organization of rural communities in thirty counties it was found that 500 churches were actually declining if not already closed and that 70 per cent of these churches were being served by absentee ministers.

"Our trouble is that we have been extending our fields faster than we have recruited a ministerial force."

STRIKE GROWING

Estimated 50,000 Persons Will Seek Union Benefits

MOREVILLE — By the end of week 50,000 men, women and children in West Virginia will be drawing strike relief from the United Mine Workers of America, A. R. Watkins, union official declared today.

Nine thousand more miners are expected to join the 12,000 men who have been idle since Apr. 1, when refusal to contract operators to sign a wage agreement. This will make 17,000 men on strike.

The latest strikes are expected to occur in the Big and Little Coal River and Cabin Creek districts, Watkins said. Miners in these fields have been working under a much lower wage scale than other miners in the state.

U. S. PROPOSALS GAIN SUPPORT

Canada and China Favor Control of Opium

GENEVA — (By Associated Press) — Canada and China threw their support to the American proposals for the control and ultimate eradication of the narcotic evil when the international opium conference resumed its sessions today.

Dr. Henry S. Beland, speaking for Canada, pointed out that the United States had enacted laws, the enforcement of which would be sufficient to eradicate the opium evil if clandestine and organized smuggling did not flood the whole land with heroin, morphine and cocaine. He insisted that the remedy against the invading plague lay in the hands of the conference and he appealed to all the nations to free humanity "from these hideous monsters."

Alfred Sze, Chinese minister to the United States said that the speech delivered yesterday by Bishop Charles H. Brent of the American delegation, in elucidating the American proposals had brought the first ray of sunlight he had seen in Geneva for the last fortnight. This was an illusion to the failure of the preceding conference—that which dealt with Far Eastern opium problems.

Mr. Sze thanked Bishop Brent for recommending that nations deriving profit from the sale of opium to smoking addicts should expend this revenue for the unfortunates from whom the profits were obtained, remarking he had fought for this principle at the first conference. He conceded that there had been a recrudescense of the cultivation of opium in China.

BERLIN FIXES HOURS FOR STUDENT LABOR

BERLIN — Students earning their livelihood will not be allowed to work longer than four hours daily for their support, according to Dr. Roethe, the retiring president of Berlin university. Because of the belief that close connection with more or less radical workmen might "impregnate" the young students with socialist ideas, the problem of the poor student, forced to work his way thru university, has worried the president.

FUSION DRIVE ON TO DEFEAT HYLAN

NEW YORK—Plans for a non-partisan fusion campaign against Mayor Hylan in the municipal election next year have been started coincidentally with a move of John Wirth, Republican leader of the board of aldermen, to arrange a conference for consideration of investigation of the police department.

Joseph M. Price, who has led fusion campaigns in previous elections is head of the movement to whip non-partisan forces into shape for the 1925 battle. The first meeting will be held tonight. In past years the fusions have combined forces opposed to Tammany. The police department was attacked by Democratic aldermen at Tuesday's meeting of the board and Wirth's call for a conference followed.

Police Commissioner Enright has denied charges by aldermen that there is graft in the enforcement of liquor and vice laws.

REPORTS READY

A. F. of L. Delegates Prepare for Business Session

EL PASO, Tex. — (By Associated Press) — A partial report from the committee on resolutions, embodying recommendations on several minor issues, was ready for the fourth business session of the American Federation of Labor convention today.

For the most part the convention marked time yesterday, awaiting committee action on the more than 75 resolutions introduced the first three days.

It was not expected recommendations on any major question would be ready for today's assembly, touching such problems as political policy, American foreign policies, women in industry and education, together with several involving differences between important groups within the ranks of organized labor, probably requiring several days for hearings.

A plan to weld into a national unit all the daily and weekly newspapers published by labor unions affiliated with the federation was approved last night by more than two score representatives of labor publications in the annual convention of the International Labor Press.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails. adv

WOMAN CHARGES ASSAULT

Avers Prohib Officer Knocked Her Down

TOLEDO — (By Associated Press) — Charges of assault and battery may be placed against State Prohibition Agent Charles Fletcher by Mrs. Bertha Weidman who charges she was knocked unconscious while attempting to call police during a liquor aid at her home last night.

Admitting that she and her husband had a quantity of liquor before the squad of 18 officers gained admittance, Mrs. Weidman says that she attempted to call police when the raiders produced neither warrants nor badges. The telephone was grabbed from her hands, she asserted, and one of the men struck her in the breast. As she fell her head hit an ice chest, knocking her unconscious. She did not revive for several minutes and fainted again when police arrived in response to her telephone call.

Her husband, Wesley Weidman, and a boarder, Ed Cahill, are held in the county jail charged with a Crabbe act violation, for appearance in the court of Major John A. Smith, Maumee.

Seven men and three women were arrested by the prohibition agents yesterday afternoon bringing the total arrests in two days to 43.

One prisoner walked out of Mayor Smith's court just before he was arraigned and escaped. He was not apprehended.

It is expected that at least 50 more arrests will be made while the state dry men, headed by S. F. Evans, continue their drive to take away Toledo's reputation as the wettest city in Ohio. Arraignment of those arrested began at ten a. m., Thursday in the court of Mayor Smith of Maumee.

BATH-TP FARMER WINS HONOR

Harrison Bassett Champion Hog Grower in State

3,028 POUNDS IN LITTER

New Record Set in Ohio Contest This Year

Harrison Bassett of Bath tp. of Jelally was named champion hog raiser of Ohio Thursday, according to a report from the department of agriculture, Ohio State university, to H. J. Ridge, Allen co farm agent.

From one Poland China sow he raised 3,028 pounds of pork in 180 days, winning first place in the Ohio Ton Litter contest against 212 competitors. This is the first time Bassett has won membership in this honorary club which was organized two years ago at Ohio State university to stimulate better swine husbandry.

There are now 57 members of the club, 50 of whom were added as new members this year, and seven others making the club for the second time.

Roy Bowles of Miamisco is Bassett's nearest competitor. He raised 10 pigs to an average weight of 270 pounds each. Bassett's litter totaled 12 pigs.

G. L. Evans and son of Brown co made the ton litter club with the least number of pigs to the litter. They raised eight pigs to 2,0095 pounds in 180 days. Evans and his son were winners of the contest last year, raising ten Poland-Chinas to an average weight of 237 pounds in the allotted time of 180 days. This figure of 2970 is 57 pounds under the heaviest litter this year but it was accomplished with two less pigs.

Elgar and J. W. Seiferd of [illegible]burg have the distinction of winning membership in the club this year with four ton litters.

Supt. Scott lauded and complimented the Allen co banks in his address. "I can compliment the bankers of Allen co by stating that they are enterprising and progressive. In addition to the skill and efficiency that they show in the general banking business they also excel in the doing of a trust business. Trust business is rapidly increasing in this part of the state," he said.

Dr. C. H. Smith, of Bluffton college and president of the People's National Bank of Bluffton, also gave a short talk.

Abner Brenneman, cashier of the Farmers' Bank of Elida, president of the Allen co Bankers' association. Bruce Apple, of the Lima Trust Co., is secretary and treasurer.

TILTONVILLE, O. — (By United Press) William Masters, construction camp foreman, ventured out into the crisp morning breeze today and had the nerve to predict a "very mild winter."

The phenomena would be reversed if we were due to have a hard winter, Masters said.

Mr. Allan Small of 607 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I have always lived in fear of heart trouble—my father, as well as my mother's sister, died from this dreaded affliction when I was a child. As it was on both sides of my family and I had often heard it was hereditary, I lived in dread and fear.

"As I have had at intervals severe abdominal pains, heart-burn and pressure on the heart, I felt there was no relief so I become reconciled to the horrible truth I was doomed, nothing could be done and must await my time to go as my father and mother's sister. This Nurse Just Couldn't Stop Coughing

Specialists Didn't Help

It takes more than than ordinary sweet, syrupy cough mixtures to stop a stubborn cough that persists in hanging on.

For slight ordinary coughs almost any decent cough syrup will do, but if you have one of those tough ones that won't yield to common remedies and often keeps you awake at night then your one best bet is Bronchuline Emulsion.

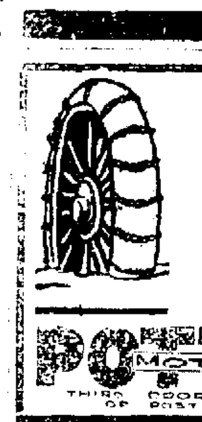

Often one half bottle forces the most stubborn cough to yield and you are better almost before you know it.

There is no sugar, chloroform or dope in Bronchuline Emulsion; it's a wonderful medicine for people who are getting over a heavy cold or an attack of Flu.

A New York nurse just couldn't stop coughing even after consulting specialists yet one half bottle of Bronchuline Emulsion did stop it—completely.

Ask Green's Public Drug Store or any good dealer for a bottle — often three or four doses will stop an ordinary cough. adv

OPERAS EXTEND WELCOME

Musicians of World Invited to Berlin

MANY ARTISTS ARRIVE

Germany and Italy Battle for Supremacy

BERLIN — (By Associated Press) — Berlin has apparently regained its position as the premier music center in Europe. Artists of all nationalities are flocking here to give concerts and fill engagements as visiting artists in the four grand opera houses which play nightly to capacity houses. Chaliapin, the Russian baritone; Julia Culp, the Dutch concert singer, Ossip Gabrilowitch, pianist and director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and half a dozen other foreign artists have already given concerts, and scores of others are advertised to appear in the near future.

POOR SEASON

There is little talk today of German artists seeking American engagements, as there are apparently abundant opportunities in Germany for musicians of all sorts. Mascagni's opera season in Berlin turned out badly because he attempted to produce "Aida" in an exposition hall which was so large that even the persons in the front rows could not hear the singers and the public refused to attend.

Italy and Germany have apparently renewed their old battle for supremacy in the musical world, and there has been much politics in the Mascagni failure. The German foreign office and the Italian embassy did everything possible to salvage the Mascagni engagement, but it was badly financed by Rumanian backers who had insufficient funds to meet the deficit. Even the local Italian colony failed to patronize the enterprise after the reports were widely circulated concerning the unsatisfactory acoustics of the building.

London is making a bid for the Mascagni production of "Aida," and it will probably be given there in the Crystal Palace. Mascagni is arranging to give his "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagazzi" here in a smaller house, and will have the assistance of Maria Gay, Zenatello and other Italian artists who participated in the unfortunate "Aida" experiment.

SINGERS UNFRIENDLY

Many of the German musicians and singers are unfriendly to modern Italian music, and heated arguments are waged in the press as to the relative merits of the modern music of Germany and Italy. The operas continue, however, to play the Puccini music and the German public show a decided fondness for the tuneful music of the modern Italian composers. Many German artists are apparently of the opinion that Germany's composers have become ultra-modern in their work and have departed too far from older standards to please the average opera-goer

INQUIRY INTO SHOOTING DEPENDS ON REPORT

COLUMBUS — Whether or not Governor Donahey will order a special session of the Ashland-co grand jury to investigate the shooting of John Dalton, Newberry, N. C., chemist, Oct. 29, will depend on the report of special investigators who may be sent to Ashland to ascertain whether officials accused of the shooting testified before the grand jury without waiving immunity.

Reports reaching the governor's office indicated that officials testified before the grand jury without waiving immunity. Their testimony being of an incriminating nature. The grand jury returned no indictments.

GATHER DATA FOR FARM RELIEF

Agricultural Commission Recesses Until January

WASHINGTON — (By Associated Press) — The president's agricultural commission was in recess today while all government agencies whose activities affect the farming industry began the assembling of comprehensive information it requires as a basis for considering a permanent relief program.

Members of the commission plan to reassemble in January, when it is said sufficient data will be available for them to proceed with formulation of livestock and cooperative marketing proposals which they regard as the most urgent problems before them. They hope to have recommendations on these subjects and as many others as possible, ready for consideration by congress before it expires March 4, in compliance with President Coolidge's desire that agricultural relief be acted upon at the impending session.

The commission recessed last night after agreeing upon a tentative plan of procedure which Chairman Carey expects will carry its work well beyond the adjournment of congress. The data it has asked the government agencies to provide takes in financial, statistical and regulatory activities pertaining to agriculture, [illegible] other subjects. [illegible] managing director of the war finance corporation, Clarence Hall of the interstate commerce commission and officials of the federal power commission were among those consulted by the commission at its concluding session.

ROAD HEARING

OTTAWA — [illegible]

DIVORCE 'EM; ADOPT 'EM

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — (By United Press) — If you can't get along with your wife, divorce her and adopt her as your daughter.

Such is the principle followed out here by Hans Arentzen, 70, and his attractive bride, Elizabeth, 35.

As husband and wife, Hans and Elizabeth simply couldn't hit off. They loved each other, but that didn't help matters much when quarrels arose constantly.

Finally they decided to end it with a divorce. But they found they wanted to be together despite their disagreements.

Arentzen figured he'd make Elizabeth a mighty good father. Elizabeth believed she could love Hans more as his daughter.

So the divorce was obtained and the adoption arrangement completed.

SIR LEE STACK IMPROVED

Attack on Sirdar of Egypt is Deplored

CAIRO, Egypt — (By Associated Press) — Maj. Gen. Sir Lee Stack, the sirdar of the Egyptian army who was wounded by assassins yesterday, passed a good night and there was some improvement noted, but his condition this morning was still very serious.

Six or more gunmen, using both bombs and automatic pistols, were concerned in the attack, and the sirdar was struck by three bullets, suffering wounds in the abdomen, one hand and one foot. After an operation for transfusion of blood last night the surgeons expressed hope for his recovery. The Egyption premier, Zaglaul Pasha, in a statement to the newspapers declared the government would take every possible step to solve the mystery of the crime and capture the assassins.

"The outrage," he continued, "will cause a very bad impression with every one everywhere. I deplore this crime. I do not know to what end the criminals are acting or to what class they belong, but I am convinced that its authors want to disturb the peace of the country. They shall not attain their end."

WAR TREATY IS ENFORCED

Zeppelin Stations in Germany Are Abandoned

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN — (By Associated Press) — Twenty Zeppelin plants have been destroyed since the end of the war under the terms of the Treaty of Versailles, and Friedrichshafen alone remains as a reminder of a time when a Zeppelin was as common a sight in Germany as is an airplane along the aerial routes of the United States.

Zeppelin stations were distributed all over Germany, and there was even one in Bulgaria, which served as the point of operations in the Balkan theatre of the world war. Eight stations belonged to the government, and were used exclusively for military purposes. The largest of these was at Cuxhaven. It included one hangar with a turntable arrangement which enabled Zeppelins to land safely even during a storm.

Among the centers where the Zeppelin company owned private stations were Dusseldorf, Potsdam, Frankfort, Hanover and Dresden. The entente insisted upon their destruction also fearing that, although they were private in character, they might any day be turned over to the military authorities.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and [illegible]

WORLD FLIGHT COMPLETED

Fliers Make Last Landing After Encircling Globe

GRANTED YEAR'S LEAVE

History-Making Trip to Be Chronicled

DAYTON, Ohio — (By Associated Press) — Hangars at McCook field today received the three world cruising airplanes and their pilots tomorrow will journey to Washington by rail and make the formal report of their round the world flight to Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service.

Their official report to Gen. Patrick will conclude the last chapter in the first circumnavigation of the globe by airplane and six airmen will assume the routine duties of air service soldiers.

LAND AT McCOOK

The three cruisers landed at McCook Field yesterday afternoon from St. Louis. They were accompanied on the flight by Lt. C. Moseley, former McCook field test pilot, who had with him Lowell Thomas, official chronicler of the world flight. He will go to Washington and write the story of the world flight besides preparing a separate story for each of the fliers which will be published as their own memoirs of the cruise.

Lt. Henry Ogden, will be reduced to his former rank of sergeant and go directly to his home station at Selfridge Field, Mich., where he will assume his original duties.

When the fliers landed here each was in possession of a large quantity of baggage made up of trinkets collected along the route of flight and odds and ends given them at various palces they stopped in the country. There was no formal welcome for the airmen.

TO GET LEAVE

As Lt. Eric Nelson climbed aboard the "New Orleans" for the last time, to see whether everything was all right, somebody shouted, "where are you going, to fly it over again?" There was no restfulness in the smile that accompanied the "flying Viking's" answer "not on your life."

Lt. Harding will be relieved of his commission Nov. 30 and will resume his duties at McCook field as a civilian employe.

When the fliers landed at McCook field yesterday it marked the last formation flight of the three machines, the manner in which the globe was traversed.

All of the airmen will be given a leave of absence after they report to Washington.

Time Saving Railroad Project Placed in Service

SELKIRK N. Y. — (By Associated Press) —The A. H. Smith Memorial bridge, the Hudson river connecting railroad and the new Selkirk freight yards, which comprise the New York Central railroad's $25,000,000 project, known as Castleton Cutoff and designed to reduce by three to seven days the time it takes to move a freight car from coast to coast, will be placed in service today.

A train bearing 28 railroad presidents, men prominent in the political and business life of the nation, engineers and technical experts, will leave Albany on an inspection trip.

The Hudson river connecting railroad links the tracks of the New York Central, the Boston and Albany and the West Shore railroads. By its use it will be possible to swing westbound freight across the Hudson river over the Castleton bridge 135 feet above the water and nearly a mile in length. Freight then will go into the Selkirk classification yards and thence west thru South Schenectady, obviating the necessity of passing thru the yards at Albany, a "bottle neck," and long cause of delay in handling freight. The connecting road consists of 47.4 miles of track. The yards contain trackage with a capacity of 10,760 cars and extend more than six miles west from the Hudson river.

Duke Offers Principality At Auction

PARIS—(By United Press)—The pricipality of Sagan is still on the auction block.

Eight months ago the Duke of Talleyrand, former husband of Anna Gould, created a sensation thruout Europe by offering to sell his country. He got out an elaborate booklet describing the nation, its people, police and "river well stocked with fishes" and called for bids.

But there have been only a few inquiries and and no direct offers the duke told the United Press today.

MILLIONAIRE REQUIRES

One anonymous American millionaire made inquiries about the place, but did not follow them up when he learned the title of Prince De Sagen did not go with the principality.

The Prussian government also made inquiries and Talleyrand fixed a price of 40,000,000 gold marks (about $10,000,000) for the nation. Prussia, however, was unable to raise the money and the negotiations were dropped.

"I don't know whether we'll be able to sell it or not," the duke said today, "but its a fine little country just the same. The price I put on it certainly is dirt cheap."

Talleyrand referred enthusiastically to the thrifty inhabitants of the principality, its ancient capital, the City of Sagan, the river Rober with fine fishing gorunds, the fine city hall with a notable display of mural paintings, a great bronze statue of Frederick the Great and the police force, which he described as "one of the best in Europe."

PEOPLE ARE HAPPY

The population, which is something more than 15,000, is happy and contented and free of burdensome taxes, the duke said. Most of the people work in cloth factories.

The City of Sagan itself, 48 miles northwest of Liegnitz on the River Rober has the remains of some fine fortifications, a number of historic churches and an ancient chateau in a great park with famous art collection. The duke describes the chateau as "palatial."

Talleyrand is selling the principality on behalf of his 14-year-old son to whom he gave it as a birthday present.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

Dear Miss Smart

I have a little baby girl fourteen months old and at times her hair is real curly and again it is real straight. I wonder if you could tell me what to do to make it curlier. Don't you think cutting it would straighten it? I wonder if you could tell me where I could learn to marcel hair. MOTHER.

If your youngster's hair is naturally curly it should be dried with care. Rub it gently with a towel until it is perfectly dry and then if it is long enough, brush little curls over your finger. Cutting it will have a tendency to make the child's hair straight and stubby. There is no place that I know of where you could learn to marcel unless at some beauty parlor. However, it is usually necessary to be employed as an apprentice and with the responsibility of a child it would undoubtedly be impossible for you to devote your entire day to beauty culture.

What does steady company mean? What are the meanings of Helen Marguerite Ethel Floyd, Bernard and Norman? LONESOME BOB

"Steady company" as the term is used by the young people usually infers that the young man is showering all of his attentions on one girl or the young girl is not accepting the attentions of more than one young man. Helen means dim, Marguerite, a pearl, Ethel, noble or of noble birth; Floyd, faithful; Bernard, bold as a bear Norman, native of Norway.

Dear Miss Smart

I have been married 15 years and have a daughter 14. My husband and I have been separated several times and each time it was the fault of his sister. Whenever he would talk to me he would come home a different man from the one I love. We were finally divorced, but have gone back to each other. I have asked him what his sister objects to in me and he told me religion. I have lived with my husband one year since I came back to him and he is getting back to the same old rut of listening to his sister and making it nes ssary for me. Do you think she is right in breaking up a home for a difference of opinion on religion? GINNY.

Your sister-in-law is taking a very narrow, bigoting view of the whole matter. Everyone has a right to their own opinions. You as well as she. I'm sorry, but I can't help feel that he loves them more than you. There is nothing you can do unless you make him see that you control his happiness more than she and that his sister should be making her home life as pleasant as possible. I am sure if she is interfering with your affairs, her life is not as happy as it might be.

At the Quilna

The Quilna theatre announces a change in the motion picture program for the current week. Because of the tremendous success Pola Negri's new film, "Forbidden Paradise" has made in the larger cities, this picture will start an engagement on Friday instead of Sunday, remaining for six days. "A Sainted Devil" starring Rudalph Valentino, will have its final showings Thursday night.

"Forbidden Paradise" has been drawing capacity audiences at the Rivoli theatre in New York City since the opening night and in a criticism the New York Times says: "This photoplay is a brilliant piece of work and as an entertainment it is conducive to peace and happiness."

The film is an adaptation of the popular stage success, "The Czarina," by Lajos Biro and Menyhert Lengyel and marks the first professional reunion of Pola Negri and Ernst Lubitsch since "Passion."

Pola's role is that of a queen of a little kingdom nestling in the Balkans. Rod La Rocque will be seen as a soldier in her army; Adolphe Menjou, her prime minister and Pauline Starke, her lady-in-waiting. Others prominent in the cast are Nick de Ruiz and Mme. D'Aumery.

"In Dutch"

Gallagher and Shean have developed an especially interesting musical comedy success this year, advance reports indicate, in "In Dutch" the production in which they will be starred at the Faurot Opera house Tuesday night only.

Shean is the owner of a chain of cheap and chummy restaurants but is tired of the commercial success and desires the life in high society and a wife from the elite. To achieve this he enlists the aid of Gallagher, who claims to have a large acquaintanceship.

Action of the play occurs in Atlantic City, Greenwich, Conn., and Paris. Capable players, singers and dancers and an attractive chorus of 30 are promised in this show which is to be sent into New York City in the near future.

The two unique comedians, known thruout the whole United States, were starred in Greenwich Village Follies last year. This year they are still under the same management but have been elevated to starring position in their own show.

They will be here one performance only.

"Honeytime"

Gene "Honey Gal" Cobb, a portrayer of negro parts well known to New Orpheum audiences, will be seen at that theatre next week in "Honeytime," a production that is said to have been especially written for him and produced under the direction of C. Ray Andrews.

Cobb was here last year with the "Why Worry" company and his work in female parts is well remembered. With him will be seen Stanley Crable, lyric tenor; Jack Levoy, Murray Bernard, Karl Mitchel, Hazel O'Leary Dorothy Bushman, Helen Downs and the "Honeytime Quartet."

A pretty and talented chorus attired in attractive costumes is promised. Scenic effects and musical specialties are said to be up ta the regular New Orpheum stndard and it is believed the show will be one of the most popular seen this year.

"One Exciting Night" is being offered for the balance of this week. Eastwood Harrison is the featured comedian of this popular show.

Bessie Bacon

There is a interesting story connected with the appearance of Miss Bessie Bacon in "Lightnin'" at the Faurot Opera house Friday and Saturday.

Miss Bacon, who is the daughter of the late Frank Bacon, creator of the part of Lightnin' in the original company, had an opportunity to take a part in the company in which her father was starred when it went on the road.

As this was the No. 1 company because of the great work of the star it would have been a great honor to have played in it. She refused the offer, however, and went with Thomas Jefferson in his company.

"In my father's company I would have played under the handicap of being his daughter while with Mr. Jefferson I was given a chance to do something for myself rather than be carried along on my father's reputation," she said recently in explaining her action.

There was no operation, no lost time. I give full information about how you may cure a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. The Affair at Flower Acres

By CARLYN WELLS

©1924 by NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Douglas Raynor is found shot thru the heart in the early evening on the floor of the sun room of Flower Acres, his Long Island home. Standing over the dead man, pistol in hand is Malcolm Finley, former sweetheart of Raynor's wife, Nancy. Eva Turner, Raynor's nurse, stands by the light switch. Then Nancy; her brother Orville Kent; Ezra Goddard, friend of Finely; Miss Mattie Raynor's sister, and others, enter the room. Pennington Wise, a celebrated detective and Zizi, his girl assistant, are called to take the case out of the hands of Detective Dobbins. Overshoes the print of which was left on the floor of the sun room, are found in the house of Grimshaw Gannon a servant. Nancy, attempting to shield someone, "confesses" to the crime.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"The mystery is a mystery no longer," Wise said slowly. "I know who wore the rubber and who shot Douglas Raynor—but it was not Mrs. Raynor."

"It wasn't Orry," Nan cried out. "I asked Polly Fay if he was wearing rubbers that night and she said no. She was on the bridge with him—"

A great light broke upon Zizi. So Nan had been trying to shield her brother! How had she come to suspect him?

"WHAT MADE YOU FIRST THINK OF KENT?" ASKED ZIZI THOUGHTFULLY.

But Wise was speaking.

"I will tell you—I must tell you all I know," he said. "But I have given my word to your brother Mrs. Raynor, that when I learned the identity of the murderer I would tell him first of all. You may as well be told now, that Mr Kent also confessed to the crime in order to save you, as Mr Finley did. But since you didn't do it, these two gentlemen have no necessity for such heroism."

"Orry confessed" said Nan, her eyes wide with wonder, "to save me! Bless him!"

"Yes he said if you were not to be accused he had no confession to make—but if you were, then he would shoulder the crime himself. And I promised to tell him when I found out the truth."

"And you have!" Nan spoke in an awed whisper.

"And I have. Zizi, go yourself to Mr Kent. Ask him to come here."

Zizi went and returned quickly with Orville Kent.

He entered the room, white-faced and agitated but walking with a firm step. He glanced at his sister and seemed glad to see her in the protecting arms of Malcolm Finley.

"You found the rubbers?" he said as he saw them on a small table.

Mr. Wise said, "and they tell the story of the crime. I promised you, Kent, I'd tell you first of all. Need I do so?"

"No," Orville Kent returned, "I'll tell myself. I shot Douglas Raynor. You know it, Nan—I think you have known it all along. I think you saw me that night. Not to rid the world of a beast and a brute—although he was those. Not to save my sister from a life of terror and agony with a drug fiend, though he was that. Not to set my sister free to marry the man she loves and who loves her—though I rejoice to know that will some day be possible. But here is the true reason why I shot Douglas Raynor. I saw Nan putting tablets into his tea or coffee. Time and again I saw her do this. And always furtively, stealthily, with a glance around to see if any one noticed. Then I saw Raynor begin to show symptoms of poisoning—of arsenical poisoning. I went to a strange doctor in the city, and learned that they were the symptoms of arsenical poisoning beyond all doubt. I knew what Nan suffered, I saw the brute treating her more and more shamefully, and I was forced to the conclusion that my dear sister, unable to stand it any longer, had succumbed to temptation to rid herself of him. I did not blame her—not for a minute—but I wanted to save her from being a murderer—so I shot him for her. That is all."

Kent sat quietly, not twitching his fingers or moving his hands now, but like a thoughtful, determined actor who had finished his part.

"There is no more," he said, after a pause "I am not sorry—I rather hated to own up—and shouldn't have done so except in case of suspicion of an innocent person. Had there been more talk of an intruder, had the household been exonerated and the matter left unsolved, I should have kept silence, for what I did was not murder—one cannot murder a beast. It was just retribution for that man's awful fraud on my sister—I only learned of it lately. But, as I said, my motive was not murder—it was to save my sister—as I thought—from being a murderer. Imagine my feelings when I learned that she had not given him poison at all—but helpful medicine! However, the deed is done. Now, Nancy, darling, don't feel bad about it—forget it all when you can. Marry Finley, and let the years to come make up for all you have suffered. I made a mistake—and for that mistake I atone."

A quick motion of his hand, so quick that it even eluded Wise, who had been watching for it, and Kent had conveyed to his mouth a capsule of deadly and instantaneous poison.

After all it was better so. He must have been convicted—his motive, though born of his affection for his sister, would have seemed quixotic in the eyes of the law, and even if he had escaped capital punishment, long imprisonment would have been a worse fate for Orry Kent.

Finley led Nan away at once and Wise called the household servants to assist him in the necessary procedures.

"How did you size up the rubbers so quickly?" Zizi asked him. "I half thought they were Gannon's."

"I knew from the very first it had to be Kent," Wise said slowly. "But I didn't know his real reason. I thought, of course, he just removed Raynor to save his sister from further unhappiness. I see now how that really high-minded man could bring himself to do it. It was partly brotherly devotion and partly a slight twist in his not quite normal mind, that gave him the heroism needed. As to the rubbers, when I found a tiny speck of green paint on the print of the floor, and when I learned that the little bridge had been painted not so very long ago, I couldn't help linking that up with Kent. Then, we had no proof that he was on the bridge at seven o'clock. As a matter of fact he wasn't. Dolly Fay's watch was fast and Kent knew it. He'd been watching his chance, he took advantage of Dolly's statement about the time, and utilized it for his own alibi. He came up to the house fully five or ten minutes before seven, entered the sun room and shot Raynor and dropped the pistol and went out again. Then he removed the overshoes—"

"Dolly said he didn't wear any when he was with her," Zizi objected.

"He did, though. Those slip-on affairs show so little that she didn't notice them. He removed them after the shot was fired, and hid them, probably in the shrubbery. Later, he hid them in Gannon's closet, which was a capital place—if my little Zizi hadn't been clever enough to look there. Ever since, Kent has been waiting to see if his sister should be really accused, and as soon as she was, he was ready.

"When he did confess, I knew he was really telling the truth, but I pretended to think he was making up in order to test him out. He said at once that if Mrs. Raynor was freed from suspicion he would not confess, but she were accused he was ready to avow the crime. A strange being, Kent."

"What made you first think of Kent?" asked Zizi thoughtfully.

"First, I think, when he said he walked up from the bridge admiring the sunset. There was no sunset at the time he pretended to come up—at seven. I looked up the weather records most carefully. I knew he lied about the sunset or else had come about 10 minutes earlier. At seven every vestige of sunset after-effects had faded from the sky. Then next, Miss Turner said positively that when Kent came in, a little after seven, he didn't look toward Raynor at all, but only at his sister. Now, however solicitous for Mrs. Raynor he may have been, he would most certainly have glanced toward the dead man—except that he had seen him before. So I knew that the sight of the body was not a surprise to him. From then on, I've only been trying to prove it up—or prove myself mistaken."

"Which you were not—which you never are," said Zizi, with an affectionate smile for the chief so adored.

* * * * *

Kent's hopes were fulfilled. A year or so later, far from the beautiful but no longer desirable estate of Flower Acres, Nancy Finley put her hand in that of her husband and set forth on a happy and tranquil life journey with him.

"Dear Orry," she said, softly, "his martyrdom made possible my present happiness."

"As your martyrdom was for the happiness of him and your father."

"Yes, dear, and now it is all past, and we owe it to their memory as well as to our own two happy selves to forget the past and live only in the radiant present and the rosy future."

"Together—always together," said Finley, his voice fraught with a happiness to great for further words.

An Intimate Story of Innermost Emotions Revealed In Private Letters

LETTER FROM PAULA PERIER TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

Mon Ami: It is a long time since I have put those words to a letter to you, my friend. When I wrote them today I was surprised that they did not make my heart beat one second faster. I think I am regaining my sence of humor. I thought I had lost it forever for when I wrote those words at the top of this letter they simply meant to me their simple translation, "my friend."

I was greatly surprised when I found out that this was so. I remember that when I used to write them I got all quivery and my heart would not behave itself.

Then, Jack, I lived only for the moment shorter or longer when I should see you daily. Then, it seemed to me that hell could hold no greater torture than to live outside the vision of your eyes.

"Why is Paula Perier writing like this to me now?" you are asking yourself now.

I am not really writing it to you Jack, I am writing it to myself. I want to put it on this nice clean sheet of paper and see how it looks. I want to demonstrate to myself that altho I have not seen you for a long time and it probably will be a longer time before I look upon your face again, I am happy.

As I sit here in the charming patio of my lovely Hollywood home, I am conscious of the song of the birds, the fragrance of the flowers and above all the permeating golden flood of sunshine.

I am happy, happy, happy.

There, I have written it three times. Do you remember how I used to always make you say you loved me three times? It always seemed to me that the number three had a certain magic. Having said "I love you, Paula" once you might possibly forget—saying "I love you, Paula" twice made me young for I believed you would always remember—and when you said, "I love you, Paula" for the third time I felt that you were always mine and neither of us would forget.

Perhaps it was not all in my imagination, perhaps you did love me, for I know that I loved you well enough to entrust you with my body, my mind and my soul—there you see the magic number three again.

Now you mean so little to me that as I wrote "mon ami" at the top of the page I could not visualize your face, I could not remember the tone of your voice outside of a dozen men who are really only acquaintances I have met out here.

I think perhaps I have overstated that last thought for we can never be acquaintances after what has gone before. I know I am your friend and I think you are mine, but what I have been trying to say to you that you really are not a necessary part of my life or even my thoughts any more.

Why am I writing all this to you, you probably are asking again, because Mrs. Summers has just told me that little Jack, your child and mine, has been given the income of a large block of steel stock.

I am not sure that whether Fate is a great jokester or a fairy godmother and I can't help wondering just the same why my baby which I brought into the world in such overwhelming sorrow has been signaled out for such great reward.

"Corrigan"

by EDMUND SNELL

©1924 by NEA Service Inc.

He jerked his head toward the mate who kept on feeling at his face as if to make sure his chin were still where Nature had originally placed it.

"Not on your life, my dear Lemburg," Corrigan assured him, turning on his heel to indicate that the affair was finished. "That's my way. In Perak, where I come from, they call it Corrigan's way — and you can't beat it, captain, I give you my word!"

He dropped on one knee by the side of the native woman, and the skipper, with a look at the broad back that suggested that it presented an enigma which to him, at least was absolutely insoluble, ordered the first mate aft. He clapped down the hatches himself, leaving the injured woman and Corrigan the sole occupants of that portion of the ship, and went back to the bridge to bring the Hau-fah safely into the still waters of Labuan.

CORRIGAN'S FIST SHOT OUT AND THE MATE FELL.

Corrigan came to the first-class deck, slipping something into his pocket, and disappeared into the cool recesses of the corridor in search of a clean handkerchief. Irene Matheson met him at the door of the cabin. The tune that he had been whistling broke abruptly off at sight of her. His face assumed that mask-like expression it had worn thruout the trip. Mrs. Matheson hesitated.

"Mr. Corrigan," she said, the words forming themselves with an effort.

"Hullo!" He started as if something had struck him, as if the sound of a woman's voice jarred on his nerves.

"Oh—I just wanted to say—to thank you for what you did. I think it was absolutely splendid."

He crimsoned beneath his tan.

"Oh" — That!" He relaxed somewhat and faced her squarely. "I've been so wrapped up in myself, you know, that I forgot for the moment you were there. Women haven't treated me too kindly in this world; I suppose I've been out in the wilds too long; I've lost polish — and women-folk haven't a lot of use for the unfinished article. But, there are some things I can't stand — and that was one of 'em."

"I know," said Mrs. Matheson sympathetically. "Perhaps some women are exacting, but there are times, Mr. Corrigan, when they look round for a man, times when there are wrongs that only a real man can right. I wanted you to hit that man."

Corrigan gasped.

"You wanted me to?" he stammered. "I've forgotten a lot of things in these weary years, Mrs. Matheson; but I sort of remembered when I was halfway thru with it, that I was guilty of a breach of etiquette. I felt I was doing something that isn't done, I mean, I suppose I ought to have checked my primitive impulses when you had retired to your cabin."

Irene Matheson flushed. Unwillingly, she found herself comparing this man with the husband she was going back to.

"The primitive woman in me called aloud for all that was primitive in man," she said simply, "and found it. I'm infinitely grateful to you, Mr. Corrigan." She held out a slim hand and Corrigan, stepping forward impetuously, took it in his brown paw.

"Are you going ashore?" he inquired, letting his blue eyes rest for a moment on hers.

"If you will take me," she replied, looking down.

He found her ten minutes later, talking to the brown girl on the foredeck. As he approached them, he saw that a paper parasol had appeared from somewhere, and the scarcely perceptible breeze which blew from the shore brought to him the unmistakable scent of Eau de Cologne.

They crossed the gangway together on to the somewhat rickety landing-stage. He called back to a stooping figure on the ship's deck: "How long we got here?"

"Twenty-four hours, at least, sir," was the reply.

"Thanks."

They had got beyond a group of prosperous Chinese merchants when the first mate looked up. He shook his fist after them and swore venomously. Presently he aimed a kick at a native hand, and chuckled hoarsely to himself. He surveyed an enormous watch with a rusted nickel case and a cracked dial on which the sun and moon played an important part. He stuffed it back in his pocket and looked anxiously up at the bridge. The skipper was engaged in earnest conversation with the Chinese super-cargo.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

Dear Miss Smart:

I have a little baby girl fourteen months old and at times her hair is real curly and again it is real straight. I wonder if you could tell me what to do to make it curlier. Don't you think cutting it would straighten it? I wonder if you could tell me where I could learn to marcel hair. MOTHER.

If your youngster's hair is naturally curly it should be dried with care. Rub it gently with a towel until it is perfectly dry and then if it is long enough brush little curls over your finger. Cutting it will have a tendency to make the child's hair straight and stubby. There is no place that I know of where you could learn to marcel unless at some beauty parlor. However, it is usually necessary to be employed as an apprentice and with the responsibility of a child it would undoubtedly be impossible for you to devote your entire day to beauty culture.

What does steady company mean? What are the meanings of Helen, Marguerite, Ethel, Floyd, Bernard and Norman? LONESOME BOB.

"Steady company" as the term is used by the young people usually infers that the young man is showering all of his attentions on one girl or the young girl is not accepting the attentions of more than one young man. Helen means dim; Marguerite, a pearl; Ethel, noble or of noble birth; Floyd, faithful; Bernard, bold as a bear. Norman, native of Norway.

Dear Miss Smart:

I have been married 15 years and have a daughter 14. My husband and I have been separated several times and each time it was the fault of his sister. Whenever he would talk to her he would come home a different man from the one I love. We were finally divorced, but have gone back to each other. I have asked him what his sister objects to in me and he told me religion. I have lived with my husband one year since I came back to him and he is getting back in the same old rut of listening to his sister and making things unbearable for me. Do you think she is right in breaking up a home for a difference of opinion on religion? GINNY.

Your sister-in-law is taking a very narrow, bigoting view of the whole matter. Everyone has a right to their own opinions. You as well as she. I'm sorry, but I can't help feel that he loves them more than you. There is nothing you can do unless you make him see that you control his happiness more than she and that his sister should be making her home life as pleasant as possible. I am sure if she is interfering with your affairs, her life is not as happy as it might be.

A RELIABLE COUGH REMEDY

Why experiment with unknown remedies for that cough or cold when you can secure FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND. It is a safe and reliable remedy for the relief of coughs, colds, hoarseness. Equally beneficial for young and old. Mrs. Anna Cornell, Bridgeton, N. J., states: "I bought FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND for my cold and find it great." Insist upon the genuine. Refuse substitutes. adv

Lithated Buchu (Keller Formula) acts on the kidneys and bladder as Epsom Salts on the bowels. R. D. Neblett, 10 Oak t., Battle Creek, Mich., says "For three years had to get up three times at night. Orpheum—"Henpecked Henry."
Majestic—"Kentucky Days" with Dustin Farnum.
Quilna—"A Sainted Devil" with Rudolph Valentino.

At the Quilna

The Quilna theatre announces a change in the motion picture program for the current week. Because of the tremendous success Pola Negri's new film, "Forbidden Paradise" has made in the larger cities, this picture will start an engagement on Friday instead of Sunday, remaining for six days. "A Sainted Devil" starring Rudolph Valentino, will have its final showings Thursday night.

"Forbidden Paradise" has been drawing capacity audiences at the Rivoli theatre in New York City since the opening night and in a criticism the New York Times says: "This photoplay is a brilliant piece of work and as an entertainment it is conducive to peace and happiness."

The film is an adaptation of the popular stage success, "The Czarina," by Lajos Biro and Melchert Lengyel and marks the first professional reunion of Pola Negri and Ernst Lubitsch since "Passion."

Pola's role is that of a queen of a little kingdom nestling in the Balkans. Rod La Rocque will be seen as a soldier in her army; Adolphe Menjou, her prime minister and Pauline Starke, her lady-in-waiting. Others prominent in the cast are Nick de Ruiz and Mme. D'Aumery.

"In Dutch"

Gallagher and Shean have developed an especially interesting musical comedy success this year, advance reports indicate, in "In Dutch," the production in which they will be starred at the Faurot Opera house Tuesday night only.

Shean is the owner of a chain of cheap and chummy restaurants but is tired of the commercial success and desires the life in high society and a wife from the elite. To achieve this he enlists the aid of Gallagher, who claims to have a large acquaintanceship.

Action of the play occurs in Atlantic City, Greenwich, Conn., and Paris. Capable players, singers and dancers and an attractive chorus of 30 are promised in this show which is to be sent into New York City in the near future.

The two unique comedians, known thruout the whole United States, were started in Greenwich Village Follies last year. This year they are still under the same management but have been elevated to starring position in their own show.

They will be here one performance only.

"Honeytime"

Gene "Honey Gal" Cobb, a portrayer of negro parts well known to New Orpheum audiences, will be seen at that theatre next week in "Honeytime," a production that is said to have been especially written for him and produced under the direction of C. Ray Andrews.

Cobb was here last year with the "Why Worry" company and his work in female parts is well remembered. With him will be seen Stanley Crable, lyric tenor; Jack Levoy, Murray Bernard, Karl Mitchel, Hazel O'Leary Dorothy Bushman, Helen Downs and the "Honeytime Quartet."

A pretty and talented chorus attired in attractive costumes is promised. Scenic effects and musical specialties are said to be up to the regular New Orpheum standard and it is believed the show will be one of the most popular seen this year.

"One Exciting Night" is being offered for the balance of this week. Eastwood Harrison is the featured comedian of this popular show.

Bessie Bacon

There is a interesting story connected with the appearance of Miss Bessie Bacon in "Lightnin'" at the Faurot Opera house Friday and Saturday.

Miss Bacon, who is the daughter of the late Frank Bacon, creator of the part of Lightnin' in the original company, had an opportunity to take a part in the company in which her father was starred when it went on the road.

As this was the No. 1 company because of the great work of the star it would have been a great honor to have played in it. She refused the offer, however, and went with Thomas Jefferson in his company.

"In my father's company I would have played under the handicap of being his daughter while with Mr Jefferson I was given a chance to do something for myself rather than be carried along on my father's reputation," she said recently in explaining her action.

CURED HIS RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 2431, Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least a step the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation. adv

The Affair at Flower Acres

by CARLYN WELLS

© 1924 by NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Douglas Raynor is found shot thru the heart in the early evening on the floor of the sun room of Flower Acres, his Long Island home. Standing over the dead man, pistol in hand is Malcolm Finley, former sweetheart of Raynor's nurse, stands by her. Raynor's wife, Nancy, Eva Turner, Orville Kent, Ezra Goddard, the light switch. Then Nancy; her brother, Orville Kent; Ezra Goddard, friend of Finley; Miss Mattie Raynor's sister, and others, enter the room. Pennington Wise, a celebrated detective, and Zizi, his girl assistant, are called to take the case out of the hands of Detective Dobbins. Overshoe the print of which was left on the floor of the sun room, are found in the house of Grimshaw Gannon a servant. Nancy, attempting to shield someone, "confesses" to the crime.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"The mystery is a mystery no longer," Wise said slowly, "I know who wore this rubber and who shot Douglas Raynor—but it was not Mrs. Raynor."

"It wasn't Orry," Nan cried out. "I asked Dolly Fay if he was wearing rubbers that night and she said no. She was on the bridge with him—"

A great light broke upon Zizi. So Nan had been trying to shield her brother." How had she come to suspect him?

"WHAT MADE YOU FIRST THINK OF KENT?" ASKED ZIZI THOUGHTFULLY.

But Wise was speaking.

"I will tell you—I must tell you all I know," he said. "But I have given my word to your brother, Mrs. Raynor," that when I learned the identity of the murderer, I would tell him first of all. You may as well be told now, that Mr. Kent also confessed to the crime in order to save you, as Mr. Finley did. But since you didn't do it, these two gentlemen have no necessity for such heroism."

Orry confessed," said Nan, her eyes wide with wonder, "to save me! Bless him!"

"Yes, he said if you were not to be accused, he had no confession to make—but if you were, then he would shoulder the crime himself. And I promised to tell him when I found out the truth."

"And you have?" Nan spoke in a awed whisper.

"And I have. Zizi, go yourself to Mr. Kent. Ask him to come here."

Zizi went and returned quickly with Orville Kent.

He entered the room, white-faced and agitated but walking with a firm step. He glanced at Nan, and seemed glad to see her in the protecting arms of Malcolm Finley.

"You found the rubbers?" he said as he saw them on a small table.

"Yes," Wise said, "and they tell the story of the crime. I promised you, Kent, I'd tell you first of all. Need I do so?"

"No," Orville Kent returned, "I'll tell myself. I shot Douglas Raynor. You know it, Nan—I think you have known it all along. I think you saw me that night. Not to rid the world of a beast and a brute—although he was those. Not to save my sister from a life of terror and agony with a drug fiend, though he was that. Not to set my sister free to marry the man she loves and who loves her—though I rejoice to know that will some day be possible. But here is the true reason why I shot Douglas Raynor. I saw Nan putting tablets into his tea or coffee. Time and again I saw her do this. And always furtively, stealthily, with a glance around to see if any one noticed. Then I saw Raynor begin to show symptoms of poisoning—of arsenical poisoning. I went to a strange doctor in the city, and learned that they were the symptoms of arsenical poisoning beyond all doubt. I knew what Nan suffered, I saw the brute treating her more and more shamefully, and I was forced to the conclusion that my dear sister, unable to stand it any longer, had succumbed to temptation to rid herself of him. I did not blame her—not for a minute—but I wanted to save her from being a murderer—so I shot him for her. That is all."

Kent sat quietly, not twitching his fingers or moving his hands now, but like a thoughtful, determined actor who had finished his part.

"There is no more," he said, after a pause. "I am not sorry—I rather hated to own up—and shouldn't have done so except in case of suspicion of an innocent person. Had there been more talk of an intruder, had the household been exonerated and the matter left unsolved, I should have kept silence, for what I did was not murder—one cannot murder a beast. It was just retribution for that man's awful fraud on my sister—I only learned of it lately. But, as I said, my motive was not murder—it was to save my sister—as I thought—from being a murderer. Imagine my feelings when I learned that she had not given him poison at all—but helpful medicine! However, the deed is done. Now, Nancy, darling, don't feel bad about it—forget it all when you can. Marry Finley, and let the years to come make up for all you have suffered. I made a mistake—and for that mistake I atone."

A quick motion of his hand, so quick that it even eluded Wise, who had been watching for it, and Kent had conveyed to his mouth a capsule of deadly and instantaneous poison.

After all it was better so. He must have been convicted—his motive, though born of his affection for his sister, would have seemed quixotic in the eyes of the law, and even if he had escaped capital punishment, long imprisonment would have been a worse fate for Orry Kent.

Finley led Nan away at once, and Wise called the household servants to assist him in the necessary procedures.

"How did you size up the rubbers so quickly?" Zizi asked him. "I half thought they were Gannon's."

"I knew from the very first it had to be Kent," Wise said slowly. "But I didn't know his real reason. I thought, of course, he just removed Raynor to save his sister from further unhappiness. I see now how that really high-minded man could bring himself to do it. It was partly brotherly devotion and partly a slight twist in his not quite normal mind, that gave him the heroism needed. As to the rubbers, when I found a tiny speck of green paint on the print on the floor, and when I learned that the little bridge had been painted not so very long ago, I couldn't help linking that up with Kent. Then, we had no proof that he was on the bridge at seven o'clock. As a matter of fact he wasn't. Dolly Fay's watch was fast and Kent knew it. He'd been watching his chance, he took advantage of Dolly's statement about the time, and utilized it for his own alibi. He came up to the house fully five or ten minutes before seven, entered the sun room and shot Raynor and dropped the pistol and went out again. Then he removed the o ershoes—"

"Dolly said he didn't wear any when he was with her," Zizi objected.

"He did, though. Those slipon affairs show so little that she didn't notice them. He removed them after the shot was fired, and hid them, probably in the shrubbery. Later, he hid them in Gannon's closet, which was a capital place—if my little Zizi hadn't been clever enough to look there. Ever since, Kent has been waiting to see if his sister should be really accused, and as soon as she was, he was ready.

"When he did confess, I knew he was really telling the truth, but I pretended to think he was making up in order to test him out. He said at once that if Mrs. Raynor was freed from suspicion he would not confess, but she were accused he was ready to avow the crime. A strange being, Kent."

"What made you first think of Kent?" asked Zizi thoughtfully.

"First, I think, when he said he walked up from the bridge admiring the sunset. There was no sunset at the time he pretended to come up—at seven. I looked up the weather records most carefully. I knew he lied about the sunset or else had come about 10 minutes earlier. At seven every vestige of sunset after-effects had faded from the sky. Then next, Miss Turner said positively that when Kent came in, a little after seven, he didn't look toward Raynor at all, but only at his sister. Now, however solicitous for Mrs. Raynor he may have been, he would most certainly have glanced toward the dead man—except that he had seen him before. So I knew that the sight of the body was not a surprise to him. From then on, I've only been trying to prove it up—or prove myself mistaken."

"Which you were not—which you never are," said Zizi, with an affectionate smile for the chief so adored.

* * * * *

Kent's hopes were fulfilled. A year or so later, far from the beautiful but no longer desirable estate of Flower Acres, Nancy Finley put her hand in that of her husband and set forth on a happy and tranquil life journey with him.

"Dear Orry," she said, softly, "his martyrdom made possible my present happiness."

"As your martyrdom was for the happiness of him and your father."

"Yes, dear, and now it is all past, and we owe it to their memory as well as to our own two happy selves to forget the past and live only in the radiant present and the rosy future."

"Together—always together," said Finley, his voice fraught with a happiness to great for further words.

An Intimate Story of Innermost Emotions Revealed In Private Letters

LETTER FROM PAULA PERIER TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

Mon Ami: It is a long time since I have put those words to a letter to you, my friend. When I wrote them today I was surprised that they did not make my heart beat one second faster. I think I am regaining my sence of humor. I thought I had lost it forever for when I wrote those words at the top of this letter they simply meant to me their simple translation, "my friend."

I was greatly surprised when I found out that this was so. I remember that when I used to write them I got all quivery and my heart would not behave itself.

Then, Jack, I lived only for the moment shorter or longer when I should see you daily. Then, it seemed to me that hell could hold no greater torture than to live outside the vision of your eyes.

"Why is Paula Perier writing like this to me now?" you are asking yourself now.

I am not really writing it to you Jack, I am writing it to myself. I want to put it on this nice clean sheet of paper and see how it looks. I want to demonstrate to myself that altho I have not seen you for a long time and it probably will be a longer time before I look upon your face again, I am happy.

As I sit here in the charming patio of my lovely Hollywood home, I am conscious of the song of the birds, the fragrance of the flowers and above all the permeating golden flood of sunshine.

I am happy, happy, happy.

There, I have written it three times. Do you remember how I used to always make you say you loved me three times" It always seemed to me that the number three had a certain magic. Having said "I love you, Paula" once, you might possibly forget—saying "I love you, Paula" twice made me yours for I believed you would always remember—and when you said, "I love you, Paula" for the third time I felt that you were always mine and neither of us would forget.

Perhaps it was not all in my imagination, perhaps you did love me, for I know that I loved you well enough to entrust you with my body, my mind and my soul—there you see the magic number three again.

Now you mean so little to me that as I wrote "mon ami" at the top of the page I could not visualize your face, I could not remember the tone of your voice outside of a dozen men who are really only acquaintances I have met out here.

I think perhaps I have overstated that last thought for we can never be acquaintances after what has gone before. I know I am your friend and I think you are mine, but what I have been trying to say to you that you really are not a necessary part of my life or even my thoughts any more.

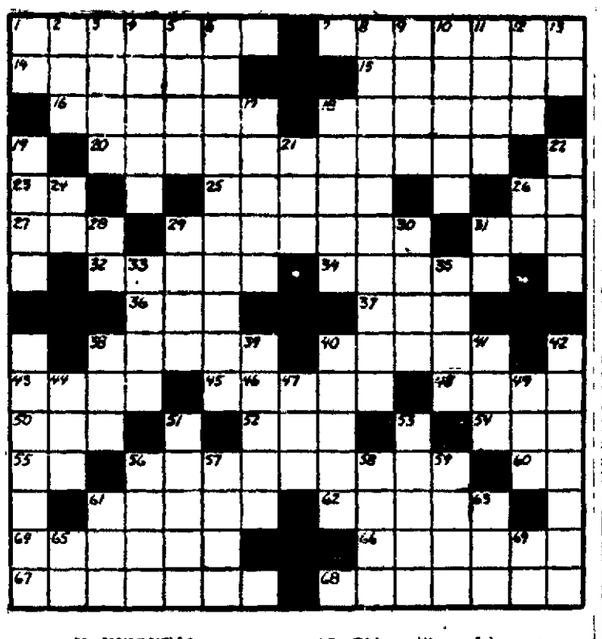

Why am I writing all this to you, you probably are asking again, because Mrs. Summers has just told me that little Jack, your child and mine, has been given the income of a large block of steel stock.

I am not sure that whether Fate is a great jokester or a fairy godmother and I can't help wondering just the same why my baby which I brought into the world in such overwhelming sorrow has been signaled out for such great reward.

"CORRIGAN"

by EDMUND SNELL

© 1924 by NEA Service Inc.

He jerked his head toward the mate who kept on feeling at his face as if to make sure his chin were still where Nature had originally placed it.

"Not on your life, my dear Lemburg," Corrigan assured him, turning on his heel to indicate that the affair was finished. "That's my way. In Perak, where I come from, they call it Corrigan's way — and you can't beat it, captain, I give you my word!"

He dropped on one knee by the side of the native woman and the skipper, with a look at the broad back that suggested that it presented an enigma which to him, at least was absolutely insoluble, ordered the first mate aft. He clapped down the hatches himself, leaving the injured woman and Corrigan the sole occupants of that portion of the ship, and went back to the bridge to bring the Hau-fah safely into the still waters of Labuan.

Corrigan came to the first-class deck, slipping something into his pocket, and disappeared into the cool recesses of the corridor in search of a clean handkerchief. Irene Matheson met him at the door of the cabin. The tune that he had been whistling broke abruptly off at sight of her. His face assumed that mask-like expression it had worn thruout the trip. Mrs. Matheson hesitated.

"Mr. Corrigan," she said, the words forming themselves with an effort.

"Hullo?" He started as if something had struck him, as if the sound of a woman's voice jarred on his nerves.

"Oh—I just wanted to say—to thank you for what you did. I think it was absolutely splendid."

He crimsoned beneath his tan.

CORRIGAN'S FIST SHOT OUT AND THE MATE FELL.

"Oh!" — That!" He relaxed somewhat and faced her squarely. "I've been so wrapped up in myself, you know, that I forgot for the moment you were there. Women haven't treated me too kindly in this world; I suppose you've been out in the wilds too long; I've lost polish — and woman-folk haven't a lot of use for the unfinished article. But, there are some things I can't stand — and that was one of 'em."

"I know," said Mrs. Matheson sympathetically. "Perhaps some women are exacting, but there are times, Mr. Corrigan, when they look round for a man; times when there are wrongs that only a real man can right. I wanted you to be that man."

Corrigan gasped.

"You wanted me to?" he stammered. "I've forgotten a lot of things in these weary years," Mrs. Matheson; but I sort of remembered when I was halfway thru with it, that I was guilty of a breach of etiquette; I felt I was doing something that isn't done. I mean, I suppose I ought to have shocked my primitive impulses until you had retired to your cabin."

Irene Matheson flushed unwillingly, she found herself comparing this man with the husband she was going back to.

"The primitive woman in me called aloud for all that was primitive in man," she said simply, "and found it. I'm infinitely grateful to you, Mr. Corrigan." She held out a slim hand and Corrigan, stepping forward impetuously, took it in his brown paw.

"Are you going ashore?" he inquired, letting his blue eyes rest for a moment on hers.

"If you will take me," she replied, looking down.

He found her ten minutes later, talking to the brown girl on the foredeck. As he approached them, he saw that a paper parasol had appeared from somewhere, and the scarcely perceptible breeze which blew from the shore brought to him the unmistakable scent of Eau de Cologne.

They crossed the gangway together on to the somewhat rickety landing-stage. He called back to a stooping figure on the ship's deck: "How long we got here?"

"Twenty-four hours, at least, sir," was the reply.

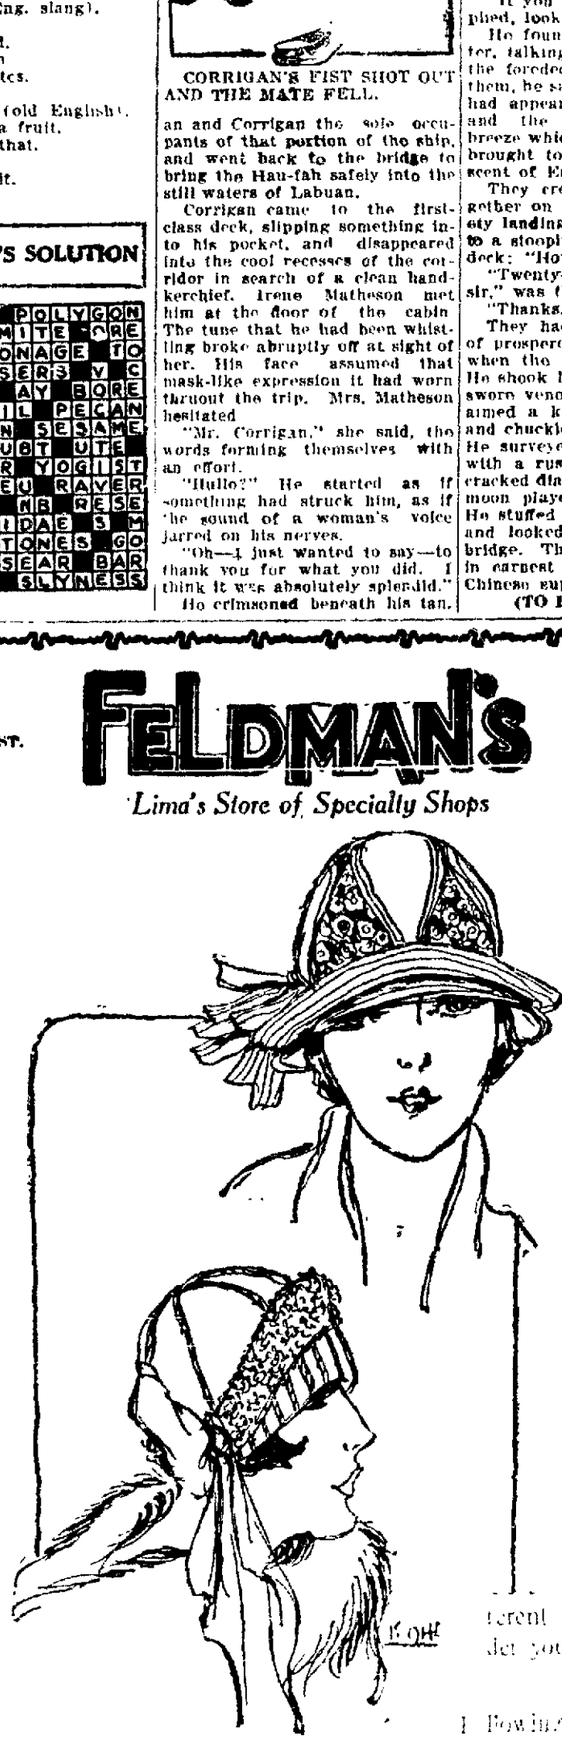

"Thanks."

They had got beyond a group of prosperous Chinese merchants when the first mate looked up. He shook his fist after them and swore venomously. Presently he aimed a kick at a native hand, and chuckled hoarsely to himself. He surveyed an enormous watch with a rusted nickel case and a cracked dial on which the sun and moon played an important part. He stuffed it back in his pocket and looked anxiously up at the bridge. The skipper was engaged in earnest conversation with the Chinese super-cargo.

Delicious vegetable soup—thoroughly cooked for hours, although the gas was burned for only 30 minutes.

Impossible a few years ago, such efficient cooking is an every-day experience of women in this city who now cook with the gas turned off on the Chambers Fireless Gas Range.

They no longer spend hours watching to prevent boiling over or replenish water.

All they do is burn the gas a few minutes under the Thermo-dome, then let it finish the cooking on retained heat, without any more attention.

The savings of gas, time and effort are tremendous.

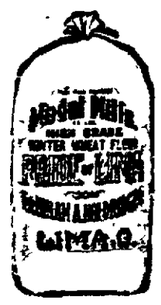

You get better cooking too with this modern range, which keeps the rich juices and delicious flavors in.

NOTRE DAME GOES IN TO WIN NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

New Idea In Boxing Launched At Madison Square Garden; Search For Feather Champ

NORTHWESTERN WILL TRY TO STOP BIG FOUR

CHICAGO — (By Associated Press) — Reports from Western Conference training camps have not reflected the intense under-graduate and public interest this week in Saturday's closing games of the season. From the routine reports of practice from the ten institutions it would not be realized that the season has crescendoed to a climax which

YOST DON'T BELIEVE IN UPSETS

ANN ARBOR—"I have little sympathy with those who speak of 'upsets' in a college football season," declared Coach Fielding H. Yost today, by way of comment on the surprising angles that have developed in the 1924 Conference football season.

"The 'upsets' you hear about are not upsets at all," said Yost. "Supporters of a team build an air castle on the strength of that team's temporary success and when the team is defeated, they talk about an 'upset.' Yet it is merely the destruction of an air castle and nothing more.

"Furthermore, I believe that comparative scores, as the basis of deciding whether one team is better than another, are worthless. When one team beats another of the same relative strength, it simply means that the winner is better than the loser on that particular day and on no other.

"My whole point is this," concluded Yost, "that it isn't something you can forecast in advance or decide afterwards. It is folly to quote figures and say one team is going to beat another. There is too much psychology involved and too much dependence on constantly varying conditions. The real way to get the most out of football, especially Conference football, is to watch every game without any advance conclusions as who is going to win. If your team loses or if it wins, if you get in that frame of mind, your reaction is keener and more worth while than tho you had looked at the game as a cut and dried affair before the whistle blew."

finds four of the elevens battling for first honors, altho three are leading forlorn hopes.

"Stagg grooms substitutes for Badger battle" sums up the information on practice at the University of Chicago in preparation for the game which would permit the Maroons an undisputed claim to the championship.

"Scrimmage against the freshmen who filled the air with passes from Ohio State formations" covered the situation at the University of Illinois, which still had hope of a conference championship despite the Chicago tie and the Minnesota reverse.

Iowa and Michigan reports of fear of each other told the story of the other two championship aspirants. They play each other and either could claim a hold on the title by winning if, at the same time something happened to Chicago.

"EAT 'EM ALIVE"

Reports that Notre Dame intended to "eat 'em alive" just to show how far it stood above the team which held Chicago, the probable conference winner, to a 3 to 0 score, have not dismayed Northwestern. Enjoying its most successful season in three years, having finally won a conference game, Northwestern is laboring mightily to see if Notre Dame's famous "four horsemen," Crowley, Miller, Stuhldreher and Layden, cannot be forced to suffer from stringhalt, rather than complete the devastating ride towards the claim of a national championship.

Tod Rockwell, Michigan's quarter, has an opportunity to end his conference football career as the leading point scorer, since Harold "Red" Grange of Illinois, who leads him by one point, is out for the season with an injured shoulder. Rockwell has 77 points to his credit.

The record of Harry Thomas, Chicago halfback, of never having participated in a conference game in which his team was defeated, is also at stake. Thomas was out of the two conference games Chicago lost in the three years he has been with the team.

Premier honors in the Hoosier section of the Western Conference inspire Indiana and Purdue to strenuous preparation for their tilt at LaFayette. Indiana's victory over Ohio State gives it the edge, but the Boilermakers have a victory over Northwestern and a good showing against Chicago to their credit.

Minnesota has the football honor of the north in its hands as it grooms for Vanderbilt, of Nashville, Tenn.

AS THE EAST LOOMS

NEW YORK — (By Associated Press) — The final eastern football jousts in a season teeming with fervor will be fought on frozen fields Saturday where shivering thousands will offer their last opposition to the advance of winter.

Crippled Harvard will hobble into the Yale bowl bent upon kicking the fight out of the Bulldog, and the kick will come into prominence when the contest starts.

Yale boasting its full strength, will have everything to lose and only an expected victory to gain. Harvard will be fighting for football life, the system of Haughton and Fisher, and to erase the ignominy of defeat at the hands of smaller institutions.

Bucknell has improved tremendously since its defeat by LaFayette as shown by its victory over the Navy, 6 to 0, under adverse weather conditions last Saturday. The Pennsylvanians have a scoring power which has been demonstrated against lesser elevens and may be among those to add another surprise to the lost list. Rutgers will be a heavy favorite, however. Colgate and Syracuse meet on the latter's field for the twenty-sixth time. More than 31,000 persons are expected to attend this battle.

LaFayette and Lehigh, who play at Easton, will play their fifty-eighth game. For five years LaFayette has won and Lehigh, with a team that has upset and tied leading elevens this season, expects to break that string of victories Saturday.

ALONG THE SIDE LINES

BY UNITED PRESS

CHICAGO

CHICAGO — Time spent on the subs of the Chicago team by the Coaches in preparation for the Wisconsin game Saturday on which hinges the championship for Chicago is believed to indicate Coach Stagg plans a smashing attack which might be too strenuous for one set of players to stand.

NORTHWESTERN

EVANSTON — Northwestern hopes to put up the battle of its life Saturday against Notre Dame. Reports that the Irish expect to "eat 'em alive" have not hampered the determination of the purple to be in the tilt ready to grab the breaks.

ILLINOIS

URBANA — Illinois scrimmaged against the Freshmen squad using Ohio passes until after dark and then held signal drill inside the gymnasium.

INDIANA

BLOOMINGTON — Indiana worked out to the accompaniment of the University band and cheers of 3,000 spectators. It was the annual pep session before the Purdue battle.

MICHIGAN

AN NARBOR — Further practice on passes was the program at Michigan today in final preparation for Iowa. Defensive tactics to be used against Captain Parkin were emphasized yesterday.

MINNESOTA

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesota regulars scored encouraging gains against the fresh team using Vanderbilt plays in a long session which include dthe first scrimmage of the week.

WISCONSIN

MADISON — Development of reserves to strengthen the Wisconsin defense against Chicago commanded the attention of Coach Ryan. His team is in good physical shape.

PURDUE

LAFAYETTE — Purdue gridders completed the last lap of their preparations for the Indiana battle today. Bahr and Harmeson are counted on to carry the load of the offense.

IOWA

IOWA CITY — Coach Ingwersen told his backfield men how to combat an aerial attack in a detailed drill yesterday. He hopes to force Saturday's game with Michigan by straight football eliminating the probability of fighting Wolverine passes.

NOTRE DAME

SAUTH BEND — All of Knute Rockne's Notre Dame players were back in the harness today for the first time since the Nebraska game.

OHIO STATE

COLUMBUS — Ohio State's gridsquad went to Danville, Ills., today where they will work out tomorrow for the Illinois game.

Martin Recovered

NEW YORK — Bob Martin wants to come back. Martin is the Young Virginia youth who won the heavyweight championship of the A. E. F., turned professional, and enjoyed fair success mussing with second raters.

Martin sustained a slight concussion of the brain about 18 months ago, and was finally forced to retire from the ring.

At first Martin suspected the trouble centered in his eyes but when treatments designed to better his vision failed the soldier fighter submitted to a thorough examination. It was then revealed that he had been injured about the head by some heavy blow received in the ring.

Martin retired following a pathetic exhibition against Martin Burke in New Orleans, the aftermath of which was an official ruling by Louisiana ring commissioners barring him from future participation in the ring.

OHIO STATE'S OFFENSE

OLLIE KLEE

Ollie Klee, fleet back of Ohio State, is regarded by the critics as Ohio State's offensive. He is the only state back who has been a consistent ground gainer in the big games. Klee is playing his last year at State.

A S A MATTER OF FACT

Being a Criticism of the Just and the Unjust in the World of Professional and Amateur Sports

BY HARRY BRADBURY

The story of Abe Goldstein, present bantam champ, is interesting, because it is patterned after what we read in books, but very seldom find in reality. We are apt to hear that it is determination, combativeness that goes more for success than anything else. It is, there is no argument against it, but the fellow who got there, wholly thru his own unceasing efforts, is a scarce article; the majority of us haven't the backbone; there is no use in denying the fact. Abe Goldstein had the backbone, the determination, the combativeness, the stamina and all the other requisites, and he landed even after the hardest kind of knocks. And he possessed one very important requisite—a good manager.

This is not a story of how Leach lost the championship, but the reasons for Goldstein winning it. We that are familiar with the squared circle happenings all remember Willie Lewis, surely one of the greatest middleweights of his day. Willie ran a cafe in the Union Square district; Willie had many friends and naturally a few enemies. To make a long story short, one of his enemies, or who ever it was pinked him, just as he stepped out of a telephone booth; pinked him twice thru the body with a 36. His friends believed he would die, but he didn't; he fooled death, but his sojourn in the hospital and one thing and another put him in the hole desperately; he lost his cafe and everything else.

WORKED IN BILLIARD PARLOR

Lewis got a job stacking balls in a pool hall; this was easy for, so noted a boxer to get, but just where he found little Abe Goldstein, or how he could see anything in the little fellow is unexplainable, for he was a little puny chap, without the semblance of strength and shiftiness that one always expects to find in an embryo champ.

"I've got a kid," said Lewis, "that's goin' to get back for me all the money I've lost; goin' to put me on my feet again." In the first bouts Abe showed little reminder of championship calibre, but he kept going and Lewis never lost faith in him. He was matched with Joe Lynch, and lost the bout by a mile margin. Lewis got him ago with Johnny Buff; the result was discouraging.

"He'll get there," persisted Lewis; "he's got everything and he'll learn." What Lewis didn't know about the game wasn't worth much, and he imparted this knowledge to his protege, and he handled the Kid with consummate skill.

LYNCH AFTER THE STYLE OF DEMPSEY

Joe Lynch held his title a long while, simply because he kept away from danger; a wise guy, perhaps he emulated Mr. Jack Dempsey, who knows. There was a boy in Chicago named Joe Burman, who had all the bantams on the fence, every time he passed by. Lynch liked best to read the glowing accounts of his prowess that sport writers tickled his fancy with, than mix with so tough a proposition as Burman. So the great impressario Rickard, who wanted to match Burman, couldn't find anybody to fight him. Lewis bucked up to Rickard and quietly imparted the information that Goldstein was ready. The little Hebrew boxer was in the country at the time, so he had to hurry back to New York, and he was just in time to crawl into the ring.

The walloping that Goldstein gave the tough Burman is history. He will probably remain the champion for considerable time, because he is adapted best to that weight. He has all the ability that Lewis had, for he was a willing and an apt pupil.

LYNCH OVER WEIGHT

Lynch was clever and tough, his worst handicap was his overweight. He always had trouble on this score. Notice that Lynch never had the skillful management that Goldstein has; he made some terrible mistakes. Abe Goldstein is a quiet, unassuming little fellow, and if you saw him walking down the street you would never take him for a boxer, much less champion bantam; he is sensible quiet, and makes friends thru his unassuming mannerisms. And our old friend Lewis. The jinx found pleasure in kicking him about many times and often; his setups were mostly pointed the wrong way. Let's hope for good-fellowship's sake that his nest is feathered with a considerable quantity of the downy sort that hard knocks won't hurt.

Both Local Teams Hard At Work

With warmer and less disagreeable weather for practice, both Central and South High school football teams were sent thru brisk workouts at their respective fields Wednesday evening by Coaches Young and Galberach in preparation for their sixth annual clash which will be staged Thanksgiving morning at College field.

At South, Galberach experimented with the line, changing the men around considerably, while he left the backfield of Barthold, Bullock, Bowers and Wren intact. He tried Lewis Goebel, big guard, at center and may use him at the pivot position in the coming game. He used any number of men at left and right guards and right tackle. Several new plans were tried out.

Coach Young did little shifting of players at college field but sent his charges thru a snappy practice session. Unless injuries cripple the team this week or in the sessions early next week, Young will be able to start his strongest lineup against South.

Meanwhile, reserved seats for the big clash are going like hot cakes and a sellout is practically assured. E. A. Hauenstein, Central faculty manager, said Thursday.

IN THE MIND'S EYE OF THE SPORT EDITOR

Down at Pottsville, Penna, Mickie Walker, world's welterweight champion was booked to box a young fellow named Vanchell, of Wilkesbarre. It seems that there were some 2,000 fans manded his money amounting to $4,500 before he went in the ring. The management refused to pay him and the consequeunce was that there wert some 2,000 fans disappointed; they didn't see the welter champion in action.

Naturally there went up from this disappointed audience a loud, long wail, resembling the noise of a tornado in the distance. After the affair was made known to the city officials, these good men began an investigation, and they found that because of these 2,000 fight devotees paying in excess of the required $4,500 there was ample money in the fund to pay the boxer.

* * *

Why didn't these officials pay the boxer? Why did Walker exact his pay before he went in the ring? The first question might be answered that because they wanted to make all they could; they were not in the business to pay anybody: the money was what they were after; a skin game all thru. The second question could be answered that in all probability Mickie knew the intense proclivities these men possessed for holding on to every dollar and the devil take all the rest ;so he demanded his.

* * *

Or perhaps in his past experience he had been stung—nearly all boxers have this to contend against — and he learned his lesson. Believed "A bird in the hand" is better than a whole flock of quail in the field. So there was no fight: a disgusting end.

* * *

To remedy this evil, boxing commissions everywhere should make it a rule to know that men who put on boxing shows are financially responsible, and unless they are refuse them a license. If a boxer refuses to fulfill his contract take his license away from him. But the trouble is that there are far too many irresponsible persons, working without a dollar of capital and beating a boxer out of the money which is justly his as often as they can. Irresponsible, so called, clubs are the worse handicap there is to the boxing game. A good match maker can avoid setups in the ring, but the fighter has no way of knowing whether he is going to get his hard earned money or not. WALKER WAS CERTAINLY NOT TO BLAME.

MARANVILLE HURTS BOY

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(United Press)—Walter Maranville, Pirate shortstop, traded recently to Chicago, was held in $1,000 bail to await the outcome of injuries to Frank Smaydo, 5, who was run down by an automobile driven by the "Rabbit" last night.

Maranville claimed the boy was pushed in front of his machine by another small boy.

DUNDEE MAY CROP UP TO SPOIL EVERYTHING

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

NEW YORK — (By United Press) — A new idea in the boxing game will be launched in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night when the New York Boxing Commission starts an elimination series to find a successor to Johnny Dundee as the world's featherweight champion. The idea may succeed and it may not. It will not accomplish its purpose if Dundee comes back from Europe with an argument that he is still the champion and demands that he be allowed to come out of retirement as Jim Jeffries did in his Johnson fight.

Dundee has suggested he will do this. The elimination series among the six contenders picked by the commission to seek his crown will develop a good card for Dundee and that of course means a good purse.

Danny Kramer, Lew Paluso, Bobby Garcia, Kid Kaplan, Jose Lombardo and Mike Dundee were the contenders picked by the commission and Billy Defoe and Babe Herman were named as alternates to step in if any of the regulars should find it impossible to make the weight.

Kramer a young southpaw from Philadedphia and Kaplan, who pestered Dundee into his surprising resignation of the title, are being picked by the smart ones as the finalists in the tournament with Lombardo as the dark horse.

When Dundee resigned as the champion with the announcement that he could make the weight no longer, the Commission accepted his retirement with the warning that he never would be permitted to box as a featherweight in New York.

Dundee's friends insist that the little Italian was barassed into a resignation by the Commission's curiosity about his weight and they argue that the commission is inconsistent in the attitude it has assumed in the cases of Dundee and Leonard. The commission as far as is known, never asked Leonard if he could make the weight and it even went against the rules in permitting Leonard to get on the scales in private before his last fight with Lew Tendler.

The commission did try to get up an elimination series among the lightweigths to find the outstanding challenger but it failed because the contenders then wouldn't agree to the plan.

Curse Still Clings About Hope Diamond

BOSTON, — (By United Press) — The curse of the famous hope diamond is again upon May Yohe, actress and one time possessor of the diamond, now the wife of Captain John A. Smuts, who is in a serious condition at a hospital here, suffering from a gunshot wound in the chest.

Mrs. Smut called a physician and police last night, when, after hearing a shot, found her husband lying on the floor of an adjoining room of their apartment bleeding from a bullet wound.

Police found a note signed by Smuts which read, "I intend to shoot myself because I have been unkind to my wife."

At the hospital, however, Smuts, a cousin to General Jan Smuts of South Africa, said he had accidentally shot himself while cleaning his revolver.

Smuts is the actress' third husband. It was while she was Lady Hope, as the wife of Lord Francis Hope, she was in possession of the hope diamond which is supposed to bring ill luck on all who wear it.

It was this sinister influence which made her run away from Lord Hope and marry Major Putnam Strong, she claims. Misfortune followed her, however, and [illegible] divorced him and was driven [illegible] in cabarets on the Barbary Coast in San Francisco.

Later she married Captain Smuts and blames the Hope diamond for this latest tragedy in [illegible]

WHEAT SUFFERS SETBACK

Foreign Quotations Again Affect Gran Prices

SELLING IS FORCED

Provsiions Are Affected by Weakness of Cereals

CHICAGO — (By Associated Press) — Material setbacks in prices for wheat, and for other grains, took place today. Downturns in the wheat quotations at Liverpool acted as the chief depressing factor. On the decline of wheat values, however, good buying developed owing in some degree to announcement that exports of domestic wheat are turning out to be much larger than was generally believed. Opening prices which ranged from 1 1-8 to 2 1-8c lower, December $1.49 3-4 to 1.50 1-4 to 1.58 were followed by a decided further drop and then something of a reaction.

General selling, part of which was of a forced character to stop losses, pulled down corn. After opening at 3-4c to 2 1-8c off May $1.21 to 1.22, corn sagged a little more and then showed power to rally.

Oats started at 1-2c to 1 1-4c lower, May 58 to 58 3-4c and continued downgrade.

Provisions were easier, affected principally by weakness of grain.

* * *

TOLEDO—Wheat opened lower on Thursday and declined toward noon. Coarse grains, lard and alsike were loweer. Clover and timothy were firm. Ribs were inactive.

NOT POLITICAL

Executives Ask to Have Problems Considered Economic

NEW YORK — (By Associated Press)—Railroad problems should be considered as economic questions and not as political issues, according to a "declaration of policy" issued by the Association of Railway Executives in annual convention.

At the meeting which was held here yesterday, the belief was stressed that Railway conditions today call for no legislative action by congress.

The "declaration" also held that rate fixing by legislative action would be destructive, that amendments to the transporation act must be kept from the hands of "political doctors" and that adequate revenues should be assured the carriers to meet needs of service and expansion.

To succeed Hale Holden, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, as chairman of the executive committee of the assosiation, R. H. Aishton, president of the American Railway Association, was elected at yesterday's meeting. W. L. Mapother, president of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, was added to the membership of the executive committee.

If a resolution fails to receive four votes in favor of the appellant, the action shall be deemed equivalent to a denial and a resolution denying the appeal shall be formally entered upon the record.

JURISDICTION

Section 9. The Board of Appeals may, in a specific case, after public notice, and hearing, and subject to appropriate conditions and safeguards, determine and vary the application of the use and area district regulation herein established in harmony with their general purpose and intent as follows:

1. Where a use district boundary line divides a lot in a single ownership at the time of the passage of this ordinance, the Board may permit a use authorized on either portion of such lot to extend to the entire lot, but not more than twenty-five feet beyond the boundary line of the district in which such use is autherized.

2. Permit the extension of a non-conforming use or building upon the lot occupied by such use or building at the time of the passage of this ordinance.

3. Permit the erection of an additional building upon a lot occupied at the time of the passage of this ordinance by an industrial establishment and which additional building is a part of such establishment.

4. Permit in a business district the construction, extension, alteration or conversion of a building intended for the storage of motor vehicles.

5. Grant in undeveloped sections of the City temporary and conditional permits for not more than two years for structure and uses in contravention of requirements of article one of this ordinance.

6. The Board may exempt a proposed building in a Residential district either in whole or in part from the requirement of providing outer courts beyond the minimum setback line observed by at least one-half of the buildings situated on either side of the street between two intersecting streets. This relief, shall, however, be granted only in cases where the proposed building adjoins on either or both sides buildings that do not conform to such minimum setback line or where compliance with the minimum setback line would cause unnecessary hardship to the owner without any compensating benefit to the community.

7. Where the street layout actually on the ground varies from the street layout as shown on the use, or area map, apply the designations shown on the mapped streets in such a way as to carry out the intent and purpose of the plan for the particular section in question.

8. Adopt from time to time such rules and regulations as may be deemed necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this ordinance.

9. Vary in harmony with its general purpose and intent, so that substantial justice may be done, any requirements of this ordinance where carrying out the strict letter of its provision would result in practical difficulties or unnecessary hardship.

10. Permit the establishing of a four family dwelling, a hotel, an apartment house building, boarding or lodging house, a public garage, public gasoline station, or both, in any residential district upon the presentation of a petition duly signed by not less than seventy-five (75) per cent of the owners of all property within three hundred feet in all directions of the lot upon which the said use is proposed, where, in the opinion of the Board of Appeals such use will not be detrimental to or tend to change the character or value of the neighborhood.

Whoever desires to vary the application of the use [illegible] district regulations herein established shall submit with an application for such variation a map or plan of the entire property drawn to scale upon which said use is requested, showing the location of existing and proposed structure of buildings upon the premises and the location of driveways and entrances from the public street or alleys, which map shall be kept on file in the office of the City Engineer. Provided, however, that no gasoline or oil pump shall be placed closer than thirty-five feet from the curb line in a residential street or twenty-five feet on a business street.

Permit the establishing of a telephone exchange or electric substation in a Residential District where such use is determined by the Board not to be detrimental to or tend to change the character of the neighborhood.

MUSIC TOO

Germans Hold Training In America Almost Prohibitive

FRANKFORT — (By Associated Press) — Native musicians will never have a fair opportunity in the United States until the cost of musical education is reduced in America, acording to Simon Bucharoff, the Chicago composer who is in Germany arranging for the production of his new grand opera, "Sakahra."

"We should have government and city support for music schools and opera houses in the United States," said Mr. Bucharoff, "and I believe such public spirited citizens as General Dawes will eventually bring about establishment of schools of that character, where poor, but talented, young Americans may get thoro musical education at small cost. A school, such as the Berlin Musical High School, would be a boon to hundreds of young Americans who are struggling to become artists.

"In the Berlin school German pupils have tuition for about $50 a year, and foreigners pay about twice that amount. Only youngsters who are well-rounded in music are taken, and the course in the school is ordinarily three years. Most of the pupils have had at least five years of training before they enter the Berlin school.

COST IS HIGHER

"Think of the difference in cost for students in Germany and America. Skilled teachers in the United States charge advanced pupils $10, $2 or even $50 a lesson. When one considers the most really gifted pupils in the United States cannot afford to pay even $2 a lesson and are often earning all their educational funds it is little wonder that American students become discouraged. We can educate our American singers and musicians in the United States better than it can be done here, and by so doing we can lay the foundations for a real American type of music and divorce ourselves from European standards.

"We can get all the European teachers we need in America and create schools just as good as the government maintains in Germany or any other European country."

KIENE MARRIAGE SOLEMNIZED.

St. Anthony's Church is Scene of Pretty Wedding

COLUMBUS GROVE — The marriage of Miss Margaret Kiene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kiene and Frank Stechschulte, son of Mr and Mrs Barney Stechschulte, both of near Columbus Grove, was solemnized at 8 a. m. Tuesday, in St. Anthony's Roman Catholic church in Columbus Grove. Rev. Father A. Miller, pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe-de-chine, trimmed with Spanish lace. Her long veil was held in place with a coronet of lace and pearls She carried a shower bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Miss Bertha Kiene, a sister, was bridesmaid. She wore a gown of salmon pink crepe-de-chine, picoted in black, and with a hat of black. Miss Kiene carried pink baby chrysanthemums.

Benjamin Stechschulte, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

A wedding breakfast for the bride and bridegroom and their attendants was served immediately following the ceremony at the home of Mrs. Bertha Hoffman, an aunt of the bridegroom, near here. Rooms of the home and the table were decorated in autumn flowers.

A wedding dinner of forty was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kiene, later in the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Stechschulte left for a short wedding trip and upon their return they will reside with the bridegroom's parents.

Both young people have a wide circle of friends near Columbus Grove and over Putnam-co. In attendance at the wedding were friends from Miller City, Ottawa, Kalida, Pandora, Fort Jennings and Toledo.

PRETZELS HIGH PRICED

BERLIN — The pretzel industry is on the decline. Pretzels, at one time one of Germany's commonest foods, have become a luxury for the aristocracy since the cost of the ingredients has sent the price sailing high into the air. Pretzel stores have been failing in all parts of the country.

VETS MAY BEG

PARIS — Only former soldiers are allowed to beg in Paris, according to a recent edict. The city streets are being cleared of panhandlers who have been annoying tourists but war veterans out of work, are being allowed to beg unmolested.

BANS TELEPHONES

LONDON — Constant ringing of telephone bells disturbs office efficiency, according to Walter Brown, toy manufacturer. Brown has entirely dispensed with telephones in his office and employs a large fleet of boys to carry messages to different parts of the city.

Mrs. Harding had hardly recovered from an illness during which her life hung in the balance when it came time for the president to start upon what proved his final trip, that to Alaska. Because of her devotion to her distinguished husband and unmindful of her own physical condition she accompanied him on that journey and was constantly by his side. IN MISERY AFTER MEALS, HE SAYS

Run Down All Over; Bilious, Dizzy; Awful Headaches; Plant Juice Relieves

NOW FEELS LIKE HIMSELF

"I am one of those fellows who have never had much faith in medicines but I heard so much talk on all sides about your Plant Juice that I started taking it and it is the truth that it proved to be just what my system was needing," said Mr. H. W. Sparks, living at 441 Summer Ave., Newark, N. J. while talking recently with The Plant Juice Man.

MR. H. W. SPARKS

"I was run down all over, didn't eat right and the little I ate caused gas and misery. I felt heavy and logy and had mighty little energy. My liver and kidneys were inactive and I was bilious, dizzy and had awful headaches. My back was weak and pained me and I had to get up often at night because of my kidneys. And in addition I was very nervous so that it was almost impossible for me to get any sleep at all and you can believe me when I tell you that insomnia is a terrible thing because I know.

"Yes, I'd never had much faith in medicines but I changed my mind when I started on your Plant Juice for it was just what I needed. I soon had a better appetite and did not suffer from gas after eating. Then my bowels became regular and I stopped taking physics. As I continued with Plant Juice I improved rapidly and now my nerves are so much better that I get to sleep almost as soon as I go to bed. My liver and kidneys work fine and I do not have dizzy spells, biliousness or headaches. In short I am like my real self once more."

Plant Juice is sold in Lima by the Hunter drug stores, 49 Public Square and Main and Wayne streets, also at the Argonne drug store, oppo. Post Office. adv
